Upper Sandusky Undertaker Is Taking Car to Toledo To Be Overhauled, and Pastor and Two Business Men Are Accompanying Him. Stoneburner Miscalculates in Turning Corner, and Accident Results.

Upper Sandusky, O., June 30.—One man is dead, one is believed to be dying and two others are seriously injured as the result of an automobile accident near Prairie Depot, Wood county, early today.

Ralph Beidler, Upper Sandusky business man, was killed.

Rev. E. E. Lashley, pastor of the Upper Sandusky Presbyterian church, was taken to a hospital at Fostoria, fatally hurt.

M. N. Stoneburner, undertaker, and James McConnell, coffin manufacturer, were cut and bruised.

Stoneburner was taking his automobile to Toledo, this morning, to have it overhauled, and the others went along for a pleasure ride. In turning a corner at a high rate of speed near Prairie Depot, Stoneburner miscalculated, and the car plunged over a twenty-foot embankment to a ditch at the bottom.

Beidler was the first man to get from under the wrecked car. He climbed to the top of the embankment and then fell over dead. Rev. Lashley sustained a fracture of the ankle and internal injuries. He was driven eight miles to Fostoria.

Beidler, the dead man, is survived by a wife and two children.

Sharker, the local agent of a piano manufactory, was killed and three others, two of them prominent business men, were seriously, but not fatally injured, today, when the automobile in which they were just starting on a local endurance run, collided with a telephone pole.

The machine was going at a good rate of speed, and the driving rod broke, causing the machine to skid. Victor Palmer, secretary of the Michigan Buggy company, William Woodruff and James Russell, the chauffeur, are the other injured. The machine struck the pole with such force that it was completely wrecked and the pole broken off.

SAFEGUARDING THE REPUBLIC

Hughes Addresses Harvard Phi Beta Kappa.

THE PROBLEMS OF SELF-GOVERNMENT

Deplores Finding Fault with Public Officials.

Governor Declares Democracy Can Not Control Itself by Power or Hold Itself in Check by Force. We Have Right To Expect Unwavering Loyalty from Men of Intellectual Power in America.

Cambridge, Mass., June 30.—Making a fervid appeal for united effort in safeguarding the Republic against the perils of its success, Governor Charles Evans Hughes, of New York, delivered the principal address at the annual meeting of the Harvard Phi Beta Kappa, this morning.

His subject was "Some Aspects of our Democracy," and he discussed problems of government at length, deprecating the "absence of governmental integrity in ordinary life." He deplored an "increasing tendency" to find fault with public officials and insisted that the real problem is to concentrate power in public life instead of dividing it.

"Democracy can not control itself by power or hold itself in check by force," he said. "Its victories must reflect the conquests already won in the individual life. And it will prosper only through the discipline of virtue, the common appreciation of justice, and the willingness of its members to devote themselves to the public weal.

"We need something more than the growing sentiment of brotherhood, something more than the recognition of our mutual independence, essential as these are. To the tasks of democracy the best thought and the most unselfish effort of educated America must be dedicated. From the men of intellectual power, of trained ability, of acumen and foresight we have a right to expect unwavering loyalty to the cause of self government."

FARMER OFFERS COLLEGE PLAN

Disciples of Suggestive Therapeutics Surprised.

ASSOCIATION OF STATE TEACHERS

Annual Session Is Held at Sandusky.

Attorney General Denman Jogs Memory of Hy Davis—John Carmichael Is Convicted of Murder at Athens—Ohio Supreme Court Adjourns—Boy Is Killed by Streetcar at Struthers—Ohio News.

Columbus, O., June 30.—Forty thousand dollars as a nucleus of a college endowment fund of from $200,000 to $500,000 was tendered to a small group of disciples of suggestive therapeutics at the annual convention of the Ohio society. The tender was made by William F. Crawford of Indianapolis, wealthy farmer, who presented the college plan to the convention. The offer came as a distinct surprise to the small group of healers by suggestion, who had congregated in the hall mainly for the purpose of listening to reports of persecutions and the spread of the suggestive therapeutics. Mr. Crawford, however, proceeded to outline his plan of a college for the teaching of his favorite method of cure.

Ohio Teachers In Session.

Sandusky, O., June 30.—Marked by what is said to have been the largest attendance ever recorded in connection with a similar occasion in Ohio, the thirty-first annual session of the State Teachers' association was called to order by the president, Dr. F. ## ITALY WANTS THE PRISONER

Como Tribunal Seeks Surrender of Charlton.

MAY BE ADJUDGED GUILTY BY PROXY

Formal Demand Will Be Made for Murderer.

It Is Not Believed in Italy That United States Will Permit Charlton To Be Returned There—Italian Officials Will Insist It's Within Range of Diplomatic Courtesy That He Be Surrendered.

Rome, June 30.—Unless Porter Charlton, held in a Jersey City jail on the charge of murdering his wife at Moltrasio, Italy, is surrendered to the Italian government for trial, he will be adjudged guilty of murder by proxy. In that event he may never leave the United States without danger of arrest in some country which will carry out its extradition treaty with Italy.

The president of the Como tribunal announced, today, that if the United States refused to yield up Charlton, or to try him in that country on the murder charge, as Italy does with prisoners wanted in the United States, a court trial will be held without the presence of Charlton. There is sufficient evidence to convict him, by proxy, on the charge of murder.

It is not believed in Italy that the United States authorities will permit Charlton to be returned here. Italy's refusal to send back to the United States prisoners wanted for capital crimes in America, it is understood, will cause the United States to refuse to act. Italy, however, will make formal demand for the return of the prisoner, and will insist within the range of diplomatic courtesy, that he be returned.

DANIEL VICTIM OF PARALYSIS

Senator Dies at Lynchburg Sanatorium.

THE STATESMAN, A GREAT ORATOR

Chesterfield in Manners and Ideal Courtier.

Death of Senator Daniel Removes the Oldest of the Democratic Senators in Point of Service—One of the Most Conspicuous in Popular Favor—Daniel Is Born in Lynchburg in 1842—His Career.

Lynchburg, Va., June 30.—John W. Daniel, senior senator from Virginia, died at the Lynchburg sanatorium at 10:35 o'clock last night, his death being due to a recurrence of paralysis. The immediate cause of his death was cerebral hemorrhage.

The statesman's illness began with a slight attack of apoplexy in Philadelphia last October, this keeping him from being in his seat at the opening of congress, last December. Only once since that had he appeared before an audience and that was for an informal talk in January. The end last night was almost without a struggle.

The death of Senator Daniel removes the oldest of the Democratic senators in point of service. Of the entire list he was the only one who could be said to belong to the old regime. And, as he was the oldest in service, he was one of the most conspicuous in popular favor.

In the Background.

For the past few years Daniel had remained much in the background. His health had not been good and his growing years somed to tell on him. He was not heard often in the senate and his recent efforts were not his best. But previous to this period he spoke frequently and held high reputation as an orator.

For no personal trait was Senator Daniel so noteworthy as that of urbanity. Whether in private life or in his intercourse with is senatorial colleagues, his courtesy was unfailing.

Senator Daniel was born at Lynchburg in 1842. Entering the confederate army as second lieutenant of the Stonewall Brigade in May 1861, he was wounded in the first battle of Manassas. Soon thereafter he became second lieutenant of Co. A, Eleventh Virginia infantry, and afterward was first lieutenant and then adjutant of his regiment.

After being wounded Daniel was promoted to major and chief of staff of Genral Jubal A. Early, serving until crippled in the Wilderness, May 6, 1864. It was said by eye-witnesses that Major Daniel was wounded immediately after he had rescued General R. E. Lee from a very perilous position.

THE GOVERNMENT WILL HONOR COLT

Cruiser, Tacoma, To Take Part in the Colt Centennial.

Providence, R. I., June 30.—Samuel P. Colt, head of the rubber trust, will be honored in a most remarkable manner by the federal government on July 4, when the United States cruiser, Tacoma, will steam from Newport to Bristol to take an active part in the Colt centennial.

The celebration will mark the hundredth anniversary of the erection of the De Wolf homestead at Bristol, Rhode Island, the abode of Colt's maternal ancestors. The Tacoma will fire a salute in the course of the celebration, and a complement of marines from the cruiser will march in the land parade.

NO MOLLYCODDLES IN THIS FAMILY

Passaic Mother Takes Son To See the Jeffries-Johnson Battle.

Chicago, June 30.—Eddie Henderson, of Passaic, New Jersey, will not grow up to be a mollycoddle if his mother has her way.

Mrs. John P. Henderson and Eddie are in Chicago, on their way to Reno to see the Jeffries-Johnson fight. Mrs. Henderson has three $50 ringside seats, and will also take her sister, Mrs. Henry Short, of Denver, to see the big mill.

"I think Eddie's trip to the fight will do him good," said Mrs. Henderson. "We have no use for mollycoddles in our family. Besides, I am rather interested in the match myself."

LATE SENATOR DANIEL

Virginian Was Unique Character In Legislative Halls.

IS VERY MODEST IN HER DEMANDS

Woman Wants $1,000,000 from Roosevelt for Alleged Slander.

New York, June 29.—Ida Von Claussen, once the wife of Dr. William Francis Honan, whose coming to America to see Theodore Roosevelt and other notables was announced from Paris a few weeks ago, appeared at the county courthouse with a complaint which she insisted on filing in the county clerk's office. Her complaint charges Theodore Roosevelt, Robert Bacon, American ambassador to France; Charles Graves, minister to Sweden, and Mrs. Alice Wright G. Graves, his wife, with slander and conspiracy. She declares that through the machinations of these distinguished persons she was deprived of a royal marriage, with Prince Eugene of Sweden as the bridegroom. Wherefore she demands $1,000,000 damages.

DANCE WHILE VESSEL BURNS

Passengers Aboard Grecian Defy Danger.

BOAT'S HOLD IS A ROARING FURNACE

Sails from Philadelphia, but Turns Back.

Blaze Is Discovered Soon After Midnight While Ship Is Passing Out of Delaware Capes, and Passengers Are Aroused—Ship's Saloon Is Turned into a Ball-Room. Captain Advises Course.

Philadelphia, Pa., June 30.—The merchants' and miners' line steamship, Grecian, which sailed from this port, yesterday afternoon, for Boston, with eighty passengers and a heavy cargo of wool and turpentine, raced back here, today, with her hold a roaring furnace. After the vessel docked and all the passenger had been landed, firemen fought the blaze from land and river, and more than a dozen of the fire fighters were overcome by heat or smoke.

While the flames were eating their way through the cargo, the passengers after having been hastily aroused, danced from midnight until daylight in the ship's saloon, courageously defying and deriding danger until port was reached.

The blaze was discovered soon after midnight while the vessel was passing out of the Delaware capes. After a hurried examination, Captain Briggs despatched officers to the cabins and aroused the passengers. Each was told to dress quickly, but quietly. As soon as they appeared on deck, they were escorted to the saloon, where the captain talked, promising them that should there be danger he would warn them in time, and urged that they remain below deck and find amusement.

Dancing was suggested and when a young woman passenger went to the piano, the saloon in a few minutes was turned into a ball-room.

The blaze at noon, today, had not been extinguished.

FREIGHT RATES TO BE REDUCED

Western Roads Hit by Commerce Commission.

RENDERS A MOST TELLING DECISION

Goes into Matter with the Greatest Care.

Finds After Careful Inquiry That Present Schedules Are Out of All Proportion to Operating Expenses and Cost of Equipment—Roads Are Given Time To Demonstrate Hardship of New Ruling.

Washington, June 30.—Several decisions of great importance to the country were handed down by the interstate commerce commission. It has ordered large reductions of freight rates west of the Missouri river, especially in the intermountain and Pacific states. The reductions are the most comprehensive that the commission ever made, and will affect all transcontinental lines. The bulk, if not all of the burdern of the reductions, however, will fall upon roads operating west of the Mississippi, whose rates have been relatively higher than those of the roads in the east.

The commission has not, however, taken this important step without exercising caution. It has provided for the postponement of the effective date of its more important orders until Oct. 1, in the meantime the roads affected, acting under the commission's orders, will keep two sets of revenue accounts, one showing the revenue at the present rates and another the figures as they will stand at the reductions ordered by the commission. This comparative data is to be submitted before Oct. 1, and through this actual test the commission believes that it will be able to verify the soundness of the decision that the present rates are unreasonable.

Recent Increases Not Included.

The decisions handed down by the commission do not relate to the recent increases in freight rates filed by most of the roads. The commission in its present decisions deals almost entirely with transcontinental rates, for which no increases up to this time have been proposed by the roads. In the opinions handed down there are several references which may have a bearing on the commission's attitude in its consideration of the widespread increases now pending. The railroads have based those increases largely on the argument of higher operating expenses. That is the exact contention made by the Union Pacific and the Denver & Rio railroad in one of the cases which the commission has just decided.

"We have examined with great care," said the commission in this case, "all the evidence and arguments adduced by the defendants bearing on these matters; the value of their properties, the cost of operation, the financial results from operation. Our conclusion is that there is nothing to justify the maintenance of abnormal rates. Rates of transportation may properly be somewhat higher west of the Missouri river than east, but there is no reason why such rates upon the lines of the Union Pacific between the Missouri and Utah points should greatly exceed similar rates on railroads in other portions of the country where the density of traffic and the conditions of operation are analogous."

The decisions handed down involve what are popularly known as the Pacific coast cases. The cases were heard last fall by the commission on a six weeks' trip to the Pacific coast and intermountain territory, and have been under consideration ever since.

The commission orders reduction of rates in practically every case complained of. In some instances they amount to close to 50 per cent.

CUT TO THE QUICK.

Mrs. Clifford Harmon, wife of the New York millionaire aviator, took a 12-mile spin through the air with her husband.

The battleship Delaware was struck by lightning and somewhat damaged at its anchorage near Norfolk, Va.

A. G. Snyder fell from a freight train near Terre Haute, Ind., 12 cars passing over him. He lay beside the track for 12 hours before being discovered. He will recover, although both legs were amputated.

One sees comparatively few Russian blouse costumes.

Deplores Assassination

All good men all men of every nation whose respect is worth having were inexpressibly shocked by the assassination of Boutros Pasha It was a greater calamity to Egypt than a wrong to the individual himself The type of man that turns assassin is the type possessing all the qualities which theorize him from good citizenship the type producing poor soldiers in time of war and worse citizens in time of peace Such a man stands on the pinnacle of evil and infamy Those apologizing for or condoning his act by word or deed directly or indirectly encouraging such an act in advance or defending it afterward occupy the same bad eminence It is of no consequence whether the assassin is Moslem or Christian, or with no creed or whether his crime was committed in political strife or industrial warfare The rich man's hired act performed by a poor man whether committed with the pretense of preserving order or of obtaining liberty is equally abhorrent in the eyes of all decent men and in the long run equally damaging to every cause the assassin professes

Havana June 28—Plans are all but completed today for beginning work on what the promoters intend to be the biggest sporting resort in the western hemisphere It is to be built on the high banks of the Almendares river in what is known as Buena Vista just inside the corporate limits It will be backed by Cuban and American capitalists who have incorporated a $100 000 company

The Havana city council has already granted the company a ten years franchise that permits of practically every known form of gambling and other of the generally prescribed sports All that remains to make this franchise operative is the signature of the mayor and Alredo Misa the head of the enterprise says no trouble will be found in getting the mayor's signature

The promoters plan to make Havana the biggest gambling Mecca in the world outside of Monte Carlo and possibly Nice and Venice for at least four months of the year, the winter months when tourist travel from the United States is at its height

Carnival Seasons

A huge casino is to be constructed in Buena Vista and a race track is being surveyed just outside the town A big amphitheater wherein may be held prize fights and bull fights and athletic games is also being considered as well as a baseball park to which big league teams in the United States will be invited for training seasons

The franchise gives the company the right to use during its "carnival season" all the vacant lots belonging to the city on which it is proposed to erect temporary gambling booths and places for other amusements The purpose of this is to give the company an iron clad monopoly on all the gambling privileges in the city The city authorities have promised the utmost security from interference and in return the company will probably be called on to make a liberal division with the city though in what form has not yet been determined

Lorenzo Castillanos former secretary to the president and a member of the administration party is the attorney for the company The company is ready with a bond of $500 000 to guarantee its part of the contract Gomez himself is quoted as favoring the enterprise and other government officials are openly supporting it

THE GROWTH OF FEDERAL POWER

He Refers to the Two Big Trust Cases

Expresses Regret That Crippled Condition of Supreme Court Prevents Decision in Standard Oil and Tobacco Cases—Tells of Practical Work of a Lawyer's Life—Checking Growth of the Monopolies

Cambridge, Mass, June 28—Describing the growth of federal power over interstate commerce through the action of congress and of the supreme court and telling his hearers how to acquire the best equipment for the practical work of a lawyer's life Attorney General Wickersham today, spoke before the Harvard Law School association

Wickersham took as his subject The Relation of Legal Education to Governmental Problems

The history of all nations said he indicated that in a certain period of national development it becomes necessary to interpose by legislation between the capacity of individual greed and justice and fairness to the entire people

Never before in any civilization of which we have a record has the machinery of trade lent itself to such far reaching control of great lines of industry by individuals or combinations as at the present day Nor ever before has it been possible to lay so direct a toll upon the entire public through the concentration of industrial power

The full significance of the attempt to check the growth of great combination and monopolies he said was scarcely perceived at the time of the enactment of the Sherman anti-trust law nor until successive interpretations of it had been given by the supreme court He expressed his regret that the crippled condition of that court had prevented a decision in the Standard Oil and tobacco trust cases

The Penrose platform is an endorsement of the Aldrich-Cannon combine, the protection of Wall street and the interests and the throttling of all independent thought in politics Particularly is defiance hurled at the square deal and these eminently popular issues which Roosevelt stood for Pinchot would represent a decided and emphatic opposition to the Aldrich-Cannon Penrose platform and under his leadership the Penrose conspiracy could be foiled and the people again rise triumphant over the bosses

ASKING FOR HER

By OSCAR COX

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association

The first view I ever had of Farmer Hodges' daughter Lucy she was wading a stream. Her shoes and stockings she held in her hands and lifted her skirts to her knees. Her hair had fallen down her back, and her straw hat hung from her neck over the hair. She was as pretty a piece of human flesh as I ever saw. I fell in love with her right away and, luckily for me, didn't have much trouble getting her consent to ask her father to give her to me.

The old man owned a stock farm. Among the animals on it was a bay filly, pretty as a picture, that I very much wanted. That was at the same time I wanted his daughter He set great store by Lucy, and I knew that it would break him all up to lose her. It's no fool of a job to go to a man and ask him to give up the girl he's raised from babyhood, and I didn't have any fancy for it. I rehearsed all I would say to Farmer Hodges. I would introduce the subject by asking if he would sell the bay filly, praise her to the skies, then offer him a big price for her. This would put him in a good humor, taking advantage of which I would ask him for Lucy.

I parted from Lucy at 10 o'clock on a moonlight night at the gate, it being arranged that I should go up the next evening after supper when her father was smoking his pipe on the porch and then and there put in my application. I didn't say anything to Lucy as to my intentions with regard to opening the subject, for when we separated I hadn't thought anything about that. I just told her I was going to brace up and ask for her.

It was a hot evening when I called, and the farmer, instead of sitting on the porch, had put his rocker on the grass before it, where he could get more air. He asked me to have a chair that stood beside him, and I sat down for the hardest job of work I ever did in my life.

"Sellin' much stock just now, Mr. Hodges?" I asked.

"Oh, I get rid of a few animals now and then, but I can't say I'm doin' very much."

"Reckon I can take one of 'em off your hands if you and I can agree on a price I've taken a shine to that little bay filly with one white foot and a white spot on her forehead."

"You mean Lucy, I reckon."

"I was speaking of the bay filly," I stammered, suspecting he had forestalled my real object.

"She's Lucy. I've called her after my daughter. She's a rattlin' fine animal."

"You bet," I hastened to chime in return.

"Kind and gentle as a suckin' dove, no mean tricks about her, easy goin', obedient to the ribbons—in fact, she's the best little girl I've got on the place."

"That's just the disposition I want. I wouldn't like any balking or kicking or anything like that I don't believe in using the whip, but if there's anything vicious I think it ought to be laid on well."

"I wouldn't mind puttin' her through her paces to show you what she can do."

"Oh, it isn't necessary I've seen her going She's mighty well put up too What do you want for her?"

At that moment, looking up, I saw Lucy herself the rear Lucy—at the window Her father's back was toward her, so he couldn't see her I faced her She wore a very peculiar expression Indeed, she looked mad enough to bite through a nail What had occasioned this alteration in her since the last time I had seen her I couldn't for my life imagine The apparition threw me completely out of my reckoning

"If you want Lucy," the farmer replied, with the deliberate twang of one selling a horse, "you can have her to try. If you like her you can keep her on any terms satisfactory to you If you don't like her you can turn her back on me."

How much of this my love heard I didn't know, for before it was finished she ducked.

"You'll have to excuse me just now," continued the old man. "There comes a man to make a dicker for some o' my racin' stock Do as you please about Lucy."

It was a terrible disappointment to get no further in the matter, or, rather, not to get to the real object of my visit, but a man came in at the gate and the farmer went to meet him I looked up at the window where my girl had appeared, but she was not there I waited till there was nobody about, when she came down and, marching right past me, made for the road. I followed and called to her

"Lucy! For heaven's sake what's the matter?"

"What do you mean by talking so about me?"

"About you?"

"Yes, I heard you So you're going to apply the whip, are you? Not on me"

"But, Lucy"—

"And father! What has come over him? To think of his saying that if you don't like me you can turn me back on him!"

I burst out laughing Catching her about the waist, I kissed away hot tears that were trickling down her cheeks. Then I explained the matter to her and the next day asked for a woman, not a horse.

LONG LEGAL BATTLE UNDER WAY TO KEEP PORTER CHARLTON FROM BEING EXTRADITED TO ITALY FOR MURDER OF HIS WIFE

The voluntary examination of the above-named defendant Porter Charlton charged with fugitive from justice taken before me Patrick Hayes, Jr, Chief of Police of the City of Hoboken, after the said defendant has been duly cautioned as to his rights and privileges.

My name is Porter Charlton I live at 204 West 55th St, NY. City

I am 21 years of age; I was born Omaha, Neb; I am married; My occupation is bank clerk

In reference to the charge made against me:

My wife and I lived very happily together. She was the best woman in the world to me. But she had an ungovernable temper and so had I. We frequently quarrelled over the most trivial matters and her language to me was very foul, language that I know she did not know the meaning of, I am sure. The night I struck her she had been quarreling with me. It was the worst temper I ever saw her in. I told her that if she did not cease I [illegible] and put a stop to it. She quit for a while and after a short time renewed her abuse of me. I was dazed and struck her with a sort of a mallet that I had been using to straighten out the leg of the couch we had been using. I struck her two or three times and thought she was dead. I then placed her body in the trunk and threw the mallet in also. About 12 o'clock that night I removed the trunk from the house and dragged it down to a small pier near the house and threw it overboard. I remained at Moltrasio the next day and left there the following night. I went to Como and from there to Genoa where I took the steamer Princess Irene about four days later. The room where I killed her was about a sort of an outdoor sleeping apartment.

COMMISSION HEAD RESIGNS HIS JOB

Reinhart, of Perry Commission, Sends Letter to Harmon.

Columbus, O., June 27 — The row that has been on for months in the Perry memorial commission culminated today in the resignation of W H Reinhart, of Sandusky, president of the commission In a letter to Governor Harmon, Reinhart makes no mention of the troubles within the commission, but merely gives stress of private business as his reason for quitting It was stated at the governor's office that no request for Reinhart's resignation had been made

Webster P Huntington of Columbus, resigned as member and secretary of the commission several weeks ago

Governor Harmon, on receipt of Reinhart's resignation, appointed General A J Warner of Marietta, to fill the vacancy, and to fill the vacancy caused by Huntington's resignation he appointed Horace L Chapman, of Columbus

Reinhart's troubles first started at Sandusky, where he was accused of having secured options on land and property in the vicinity of where the Perry celebration would be held, through rentals, etc., during the celebration

To remove obstinate stains from white goods, put a tablespoonful of sulphur on a plate, moisten it with pure alcohol and ignite Cover with a tin funnel, wet the tained portion of the goods and hold over the small hole of the funnel allowing the fumes to reach every part of the stain, but taking great care not to breathe them.

Downes begged his wife, for the sake of their little girl, to remain with him, but finding his efforts unavailing he suddenly grabbed a rifle and shot his mother-in-law in the mouth killing her instantly. Another shot struck his wife in the neck and she fell dead Then Downes placed the muzzle of the weapon at his forehead and pulled the trigger, with instantaneously fatal results.

Detectives Find Booze.

Circleville, O., June 27. Three detectives coming from Columbus in an automobile made a raid on the places of Denny Pickens and T N Caskey with drawn revolvers They searched and found bottles of beer and whiskey. Warrants in the court of E. E. Smith, mayor of Ashville were served on Pickens and Caskey, charging them with violation of the Rose county local option law, and they were ordered to appear for hearing.

To make an excellent cleaning soap, take a laundry size cake of pure white soap, cut it into small pieces and mix it well with three ounces of borax, cover with cold water and let it boil until the soap is dissolved Then add three and a half quarts of warm water and let it cool, then add a scant ounce of pure ammonia.

VISITATION OF GOD'S WRATH

People of Russia Think This of Cholera Scourge.

THE PEOPLE TAKE NO PRECAUTIONS

Several Thousand New Cases Are Reported.

In Several Cities Where the Disease Is Epidemic, the Troops Are Guarding the Hospitals Against Destruction by Frantic People. Cholera Is of Particularly Malignant Type—Many Die.

Odessa, June 27.—The cholera situation in the south of Russia is today so serious that physicians are predicting the worst scourge of the last generation before frost checks the spread.

Officially, there were reported only 1,796 cases last week, but not more than one-third of the known cases find their way into the official report and there were really about 5,000 new cases.

The cholera is of a particularly malignant type, and nearly forty per cent of the cases are proving fatal.

The ignorance of the people is chiefly responsible for the spread of the disease as they refuse absolutely to take any precautions.

In several cities where the disease is epidemic, troops are guarding the hospitals against their destruction by the frantic people, who seek thus to liberate the cholera sufferers. The people generally believe that the epidemic is a visitation of God's wrath, and that it is useless to try to check it.

FASHIONS AND FADS.

A simple finish for a black gown may be nothing more than a narrow band of coral color attached to the low round neck with a fagotting stich Similar bands trim the sleeves.

There are two kinds of hatpins offered to those who care much about the very new thinks in style. One is made of ivory, the other of Irish lace flowers. The former is expensive, the latter is not.

Handbags, and purses, too, are made of linen to match the suit with which they are carried. Generally, though not always, they are braided, embroidered or embellished with other handwork

Very pretty afternoon gowns are made of the sheer batiste, which comes in the most fascinating shades this year. This material, too, is used for princess slips, worn under the white lingerie gown.

One of the features of the present season is the little tunic of voile, marquisette or chiffon cloth made for wear over the gown of foulard of taffeta, and above all, over the frock of lingerie persuasion.

Silk flowers, made so exactly that it is difficult to tell them from the original models, are used for fastenings at the neck in place of the conventional pin These are especially modish with the collarless afternoon gown

One of the newest ideas in trimming is the use of overlapping buttons to finish skirts and coats. The buttons are put on one above the other so that their rims overlap each other and make a continuous line.

The brass nettings for the top of bowls, originally called pansy bowls, are to be had in sizes to fit almost any receptacle for flowers. Fancy brass holders are found in the shops, too, for vases of white or green glass

The peach basket hat is still with us; the mob cap is dominant; the sweeping cavalier is seen everywhere; the bell-shaped morning hat is in evidence, and the modified Directoire bonnet is considered among the best choices.

Ribbons of every variety, seemingly, are called upon to contribute to the season's fashions. Especially popular are the warp prints for girdles and sashes at the present time and there is still a later trend in the use of plain and velvet ribbons for the same purpose

Take an old dustpan that has no hand and nail to the middle of the back a stick one yard long and three or four inches wide, allowing the lower end of the stick to project about three inches below the bottom of the pan If properly done, you will have a dustpan that can easily be carried and will save much stooping over.

If your last season's hat trimmings in the shape of flowers are badly faded, do not consider their condition hopeless; get a few water colors and a brush and proceed to touch them up to your liking.

STATEHOOD BILL ENDS WORRY OF BONDHOLDERS

The Pima County, Arizona, People Have Cause for Rejoicing.

GOVERNMENT SHOWS WHOLESALE PRICES

Department of Agriculture Is Booming Bee Culture—Issues a Bulletin on Subject—Condition of Treasury at End of This Month Is Improved. Pure Food Laws Again.

When President Taft with the gold pen of Postmaster General Hitchcock and the long eagle quill of Delegate Andrews of New Mexico, wrote 'William H Taft upon the statehood bill he put at an end a quarter century of worry for the holders of the bonds of Pima county Arizona, and wound up one of the most complicated financial romances that has puzzled legislators here for many a day

Back in the early days of Arizona, the residents of Pima county were ambitious to have a railroad constructed from Tucson, the county seat to Globe, Arizona, the locality of a great mining field Accordingly the territorial legislature passed in 1882 a mandamus act requiring Pima county to issue county bonds to be exchanged for railroad bonds in the construction of this road

According to the statements of the Honorable Mark Smith, former delegate from Arizona who appeared before the senate committee on territories during the recent statehood hearings the site for this railroad was graded with a plow for ten miles out of Tucson Ties were laid at intervals of about twenty feet, the rails were tied to the ties and that finished the building of the Tucson-Globe short line

Puzzling Question.

The supervisors of Pima county duly exchanged county bonds sufficient to cover the building of these ten miles and placed the rest of the bond issue in the safe of the court house These bonds were taken from that safe though no one knows how or by whom, and were next seen being floated as high grade securities around the New York market

Then came the trouble The citizens of Pima county resisted the payment of the bonds and the case was fought to the supreme court of the United States The bonds were sold by a well known New York bonding house, which evidently had bought them in good faith, and had resold them to their customers with all the guarantee that their firm name implied The bond house to clear itself took up the cause of the bond holders The supreme court decided in favor of Pima county and held that the bonds were never valid

Best Foot Forward

The bond holders then took the usual alternative and went after congress to pass a law validating the bonds Sonorous arguments of saving the people of Arizona from becoming known as repudiators and thus impairing their credit were brought to bear by the bondholders upon congressmen For years congress refused to take action Mark Smith was one of the most determined fighters against saddling Pima county with the debt Insistency however, told and one year (it happened that it was the only session when Smith was out of congress for years before and after this fight) congress yielded to the bond holders and validated the bonds by a special act Later the supreme court decided that in view of the act of congress the bonds were valid The bondholders however, were never able to get their money or the interest on it

When the Statehood bill came up this session therefore the bond holders were there with their best foot forward The senate listened to them and gave the bond holders a sufficient grant of land to pay the bonds at par with interest

High Food Prices

An annual report on wholesale prices just published by the department of commerce and labor shows that wholesale prices in 1909 as measured by the 257 commodities, advanced three per cent over the wholesale prices in 1908, but with this advantage, they were still 2 3 per cent below the average of 1907, the year of highest prices in the period of 1890 to 1909 Yet the highest record for a single month in twenty years was made last March

Wholesale prices in 1909 were 14 5 per cent higher than in 1900, forty one per cent higher than in 1897 the year of the lowest prices in the period from 1890 to 1909, twelve per cent higher than in 1890, and 26 5 per cent higher than the average price for the ten years 1890 to 1900

The highest point reached in 1907 was in October, from which month there was a general decline until August 1908 Beginning with September 1908 there was a monthly increase without a break up to March 1910, when prices ranged 7 5 per cent higher than in March 1909 10 2 per cent higher than in August 1908 21 1 per cent higher than the average yearly price of 1900, 49 2 per cent higher than the average yearly price of 1897 and 33 8 per cent higher than the average price for the ten years 1890 to 1899

Among the products showing marked increase in price in 1909 were choice to extra steers which increased twenty-four per cent from February to November cotton, which advanced 59 2 per cent from January to December heavy hogs 36 7 per cent from January to December hops 204 per cent from January to November Elgin creamery butter, 36 9 per cent from May to December, dairy butter 32 9 per cent from March to December winter wheat flour, 44 2 per cent from January to June lard 27 3 per cent from February to December short clear bacon, forty-six per cent from February to December milk 8 8 9 per cent from June to December, coke eighty one per cent from June to October and rubber 71 9 per cent from February to October

Booms Bee Culture

The Department of Agriculture has just issued a farmers bulletin booming bee culture There is money in bee keeping if it is managed right according to the bulletin and the purpose of the publication is to give briefly the information needed by persons engaged in the industry

Bee keeping is being carried on with both pleasure and profit by many thousands of persons in all parts of the United States, and while as a rule it is not the sole occupation of those who pursue it there are many places where an experienced bee keeper can make a good living by devoting his entire time and attention to this line of work

The average annual yield per colony for the entire country should be from twenty-five to thirty pounds of comb honey or forty to fifty pounds of extracted honey The money to turn to be obtained from this crop depends entirely upon the market and the methods of selling the honey If sold directly to the consumer extracted honey brings from ten to twenty cents per pound and comb honey from fifteen to twenty-five cents per section

The Prices Vary.

If sold to dealers the price varies from six to ten cents for extracted honey and from ten to fifteen cents for comb honey From the gross receipts must be deducted from fifty cents to one dollar per colony for the expense other than labor, including foundation sections occasional new frames and hives and other incidentals not however providing for increases

These figures are based on a system of good management Bee keeping to be profitable requires hard work, knowledge and experience Much study according to the bulletin, is required to insure success It is unwise therefore for the individual to undertake extensive bee keeping without considerable previous experience on a small scale since there are so many details which go to make up success in the work Learn the ways of the bees save the department how to handle them and what kind of equipment is best Then begin on a small scale make the bees pay for themselves and for all additional apparatus, as well as some profit, and let the business grow gradually

Condition of Treasury

The condition of the national treasury at the end of this month which is also the end of the fiscal year will be very much better than was estimated by Secretary MacVeagh in his annual report to congress last December Not only have the receipts been heavier than he expected, but the economies of the administration have resulted in considerably reduced disbursements

Instead of a deficit of $34 000,000 predicted by the secretary, in the ordinary receipts and disbursements there will be in all probability, a surplus of $5 000,000 or $6 000,000 If the extraordinary expenses of the Panama canal and redemption of the public debt are taken into account the deficit for the year will be only $28 000 000 instead of $79 000,000 as estimated by the secretary

Basing his calculations on the figures already in hand one of the most experienced of the treasury officials predicted that the receipts of the government for the year would reach a total of $666 000,000, which is $18 000 000 more than was expected by the secretary This includes $276 000 000 from customs, $267 000 000 from internal revenue $17 000 000 from the corporation tax, and $50 000 000 from miscellaneous sources Secretary MacVeagh estimated last December that the new tariff would yield $345,000,000 in revenue

The ordinary disbursements will amount to $660 000 000 instead of $682 000,000 as estimated by the secretary The items which have agreeably disappointed him are the expense for the civil list and for the army and navy The postal deficiency for which he estimated $16,880,000 will be only $9 195 000

A Solemn Warning

The department of agriculture, through the board of food and drug inspection is on the trail of manufacturers who seek to deceive the public by misbranding foods grains, extracts, drugs etc, or adulterating them within the meaning of the pure food law To date there have been under the pure food and drug act nearly 400 judgments against manufacturers fines having been imposed in every case and warnings issued

The bureau of chemistry has under its watchful eye all new products and old products in fact every thing in the nature of food or drug Whenever there is any suspicion that in the manufacturing of any commodity in the food line there is anything appearing that may be injurious to the uses of that the public is being deceived in any way a sample of the product is procured and a chemical analysis made In case evidence is found that the pure food law has been violated criminal information is filed in the local district court and the defendant given a chance to prove his product to be what the label claims The result in most cases is a small fine and a solemn warning

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

When it is necessary to measure any liquid by the drop, one may dispense with the pipette Cut a small notch at the edge of the cork just large enough for a drop to come through at a time, push the cork in tight and pour

When there were several children constantly in need of new shoes, the one who has to provide them will do well to try this Coat the soles of the shoes with three or four coats of copal varnish and they will never need resoling

Jars in which lard has been kept for some time can be purified and cleansed of all odor by filling with skim milk and letting stand over night Place on the stove and heat slowly until it reaches the boiling point Scald with soda water

For bruised furniture wet the part with warm water double a piece of brown paper five or six times soak it in warm water lay it on the place, apply on that a warm flatiron till the moisture is evaporated If the bruise is not gone repeat

To remove perspiration stains from silk waists, sponge the place over your hand with a clean white rag wet in clear water, then cover completely with powdered prepared chalk Let it dry thoroughly and brush off carefully with a soft brush

In freezing ice cream, put the ice and salt in the freezer and press torn newspapers close around the top covering all with the ice pack Turn the crank a few minutes and let it stand ten or fifteen minutes It will then freeze with about five minutes turning

The cleaning of feather pillows is not a task to be dreaded Place a couple of pieces of board across four tin coffee cans and set in the bottom of the boiler Put three inches of water in the boiler place the pillows on the board, cover the boiler and let the pillows steam for an hour, and dry in the sun

THE LATEST LIFE IN OLD PICTURES

By William T. Ellis.

The International Sunday-School Lesson for July 3 Is Pictures of the Kingdom Matthew 13 31-33, 44-52

If first things were kept first, and relative values were truly observed, the notorious prize fight would get only brief notice on the back page of the newspapers and the World's Missionary Conference at Edinburg would have a first page display head, the billboards with their previsions of art would disappear and the old masters would be kept on public display When any man gets to thinking—be he the infidel or materialist—he is sure to come to a contemplation of the great themes of religion for every nation's creed represents the highest thought of its best minds Humanity simply can not escape the lights of religion And if we fairly observed relative values we would put into first place all that concerns religion

Like all the lesser philosophers Jesus taught ethics morals and religion He was different from others in that He had a revealed religion to present and He also knew how to express His message in pictorial words that live forever His paintings in parbolic form of the verities of the soul's quest after God are masterpieces of literature Like some of the old paintings they seem as fresh and true today as it painted yesterday They speak as truly to this time as to the generation in which they were uttered Without a parable spoke He nothing unto them, runs the record and these pictures are like the old portraits which follow the observer with their eyes all over the room The figures from the Master's brush look straight at one like Nathan they seem to say Thou art the man

When Little Becomes Great

The five of the picture stories which remain to be told from this chapter of Matthew all concern the kingdom of heaven That was the passion of Jesus He was surprisingly indifferent to ecclesiasticism and to churchly procedure and to misnamed "worldly wisdom But He was thrice with zeal for the kingdom Then as now, the ecclesiastical party identified the temporal church machinery with the spiritual kingdom We clutter up God's work with a lot of clacking clattering, outworn and antiquated machinery that belongs in the junk-heap, all forsooth, because it once was useful to the kingdom So we retain useless and competing forms and offices and unfit officials all because we have not the Christian courage and vision to sweep out of the way these impediments to the kingdom's real progress There are a host of good people who are more obvious for some board—a wooden, dead and immobile thing—than they are for the kingdom in its vastness We need to shift our emphasis to where Christ puts it and that was on the kingdom of heaven

Jesus saw that the biggest thing in the universe—bigger than any Halley's comet or orderly planet—is the kingdom of heaven If men were not so blind everybody would see this also Even though its local beginnings seem to folk be as insignificant as a mustard tree its future is inevitably great It takes a person of vision to see the potentiality of a seed a boy in a An Anybody can understand that there is might and meaning to such a monster demonstration as the World's Sunday-School convention in Washington six weeks ago Apparently only Jesus caught the meaning of the little cluster of men who followed Him but whom the world was one day to follow The Syrian mustard has become a great tree for the sheltering and feeding of the nations

Recently at a large neighborhood dinner party impromptu speeches were called for One man arose and told of his own recent contact with the peace movement another talked of world brotherhood and the Orient's ferment a third spoke of the sweep and meanirg of the Sunday school All the men present felt as if they had added an inch to their manhood by being lifted above the offerveseence and banalities of the ordinary after dinner talks The consciousness of having had their eyes opened to the deeper realities of their time seemed the flavor of the real wit and humor and good fellowship that abounded about that board A social occasion is well utilized when it helps people to discern the "signs of the time

The Stuttering Parrot

Contact creates conformity The law of touch Jesus said by the story of the leaven governs the growth of His kingdom God men in the world bring about a God-world The kingdom comes as its subjects conform when to their likeness Sometimes we hear absurd drivel about lives being little and commonplace but indeed they are not lived in the limelight of public attention As a fact had its better agencies for extending his sovereignty than the subjects who live loyally close to other men The closer Christianity gets to the world the quicker the world will become Christian

A stuttering man bought a parrot, guaranteed to be a good talker He kept it for a few weeks and then he brought it back to the dealer I don't want this bird It stutters' congruity creates conformity Nearness begets likeness Saintly persons flavor a neighborhood with saintliness God time men set the world ablaze It is the leaven in the lump in the lump mind you not up on some shelf or hidden in a closet—that leavens the whole The hope of the world is the church in its midst The pervasive doctrine of Jesus, permeating all of society is the hope of society's transformation

The reader of the news finds his nerves atingle as he contemplates what the gospel leaven has lately been doing in the world For a millenium past the land where Jesus told these stories has been in the grip of intolerant Islam Now the leaven has spread and swollen overturning the tyrannous throne of the sultan and giving religious liberty to all people on this holy soil So the chosen people are flocking back to Palestine The same leaven is cracking the tomb of dead Egypt, and bringing new life to light It is changing the changeless East beyond man's believing Transformations such as the sun has never before beheld are being effected all over the earth because this leaven of the gospel has been hidden in the mass of humanity

The Doctor's Ethics

The ethics of the medical profession require a physician to give to all the world without money or price the benefit of any new discovery he may make in medicine Those are also the ethics of Jesus The best belongs to everybody And the exceeding treasure of life is religion For that all the world seeks Consider the multitude of pilgrims now en route to Mecca and Benares and Hissar and Isc and the lesser shrines of the worlds religions These one and all represent the pursuit of spirit satisfaction They stand for the world's agreement with the proposition of Jesus that the pearl of great price and the treasure best worth seeking is peace and eternal life

The two pictures—that of the man who found a treasure hid in a field for even these old fashioned banks often fail the original depositors and sold all that he had and bought the field, and the merchantman seeking goodly pearls who bought one pearl of great price by the sale of all his possessions—have one meaning the supreme desirability of the kingdom of heaven The unsearchable riches of Christ should be a recurring theme in the teaching of this great lesson All second rate pursuits should be abandoned for the sake of the one thing needful which is life eternal and supernal

Many Fish, One Net.

The person who wants to be exclusive is finding this an increasingly difficult world in which to live Snobbish Americans move to Europe where social lines still retain some what of their old rigidity The lament is frequent that summer resorts quickly lose their exclusive tone The truth is, the great tides of democracy, which began to rise in Galilee's blue waters nineteen centuries ago are beating and booming against the foundations of all unbrotherly aristocracies The ultimate form of human government is a democracy All kinds and conditions of people are being drawn closer together—all on a higher level

Jesus pictures the kingdom of heaven itself as a net, gathering up all kinds of fish Of course there is an ultimate separation of the good from the bad At the moment it is fun to dwell upon the comprehensiveness of the church It has room for all classes There is a fundamental defect in the method of founding a workingmen's mission on the East Side and an employers church on fifth avenue For the sake of the church for the sake of the world for the sake of the nation, for the sake of the gentle Brother of all men who meets everybody on a level of love, this state of things must be supplanted by the Christian fraternity which knows no division except that portrayed in the parables of the tares and the net—the separation of the good from the bad

God does not divide men according to any of the world's stupid classifications Dr Talmage once said that while society divides men style by many horizontal lines into upper classes middle classes lower classes, etc—Jesus divides them only by one perpendicular line—the sheep from the goats, the just from the unjust This is the only dividing line between men that is of permanent importance

Built Nest of Clothespins.

MARION TAXPAYERS ARE IN OPEN REVOLT

Against Inequalities of Assessments for Taxation

APPEAR BEFORE THE BOARD OF ASSESSORS

Want the Rates in Marion Lowered to Conform with Those in the Farming Districts—If This Is Not Done the Matter Will Be Carried to the Supreme Court

We want our property in Marion valued at the true value in money and put in proportion to the valuations placed by the appraisers of property in the rural districts of the county We don't want to pay taxes on Marion city property that is valued at the times is much as property in the country is appraised in the county

Attorney Colonel P Christian representative taxpayers addressed the county commissioners and board of equalization in the interest of the taxpayers of Marion in the interim between the present session of the board of equalization and the session of the court next year Forcibly he called attention to the inequalities existing between the assessments of rural property and that of the city taxpayers who have their property at its cash value in money

What we want is a fair and equal appraisement of all property continued Colonel Christian We don't want to be appraised at a higher valuation than the farmer is asked to return his valuations at a city with the same as they have to it is not just

Logical Argument

Colonel Christian presented one of the closest arguments on the question that has been heard in the interest of equalized appraisement The board does not rest upon the statute he declared but upon the poor man—the man who wants a little home in Marion The average home owner under the present method of appraising property in Marion will pay as much taxes as he will do farmer he said

The pettier declared that high taxes were not the result so much of the valuations returned for the tax duplicate but to years of extravagant commissioning bonds for anything and everything Without hesitation he said that there had been too much graft in connection with the issuing of bonds and for this the taxpayers had to suffer He made it plain that the taxpayers did not propose to stand idly by and allow the city to add of quadrennial assessors to appraise their property at its true value more than the farmers property was appraised at less than half

To Supreme Court

Stirring to himself the colonel declared he would carry the question to the supreme court before he would submit to paying taxes on property at the grossly appraised as now indicated by the returns He said he firmly believed that the supreme court would not permit such injustice

Colonel Christian eloquently pleaded that the local board proceed to adjust the valuations in Marion to meet the valuations in the county He did not want the matter to go to the county board of equalization but because Marion taxpayers would get no relief there The county commissioners are all farmers and they will look to the farmers view of the question he said It is up to this board to equalize the assessment before making its report

Board Is Impressed

Colonel Christian incidentally mentioned the fact that the people of Marion were rich and had been lavish for years past they had no representative on the board of county commissioners We ought to have a fair chance on that board to look after our welfare he added

Members of the quadrennial board were deeply impressed with Colonel Christian address, and privately said that something would immediately be done to remedy the glaring inequalities that now obtain To what extent they will go in adjusting the assessment valuation will not be known until they file their report

Among the taxpayers present at the meeting were A H Kling G W King J C Fairbanks C C Fisher A C Edmondson D A Frank, Dan Evan W I Jones Henry Linn Geo D Copeland L K Uhler, I A Merchant W H Schaffner and Edward Wyles

GUARDING OUR FAR-FLUNG COAST LINE

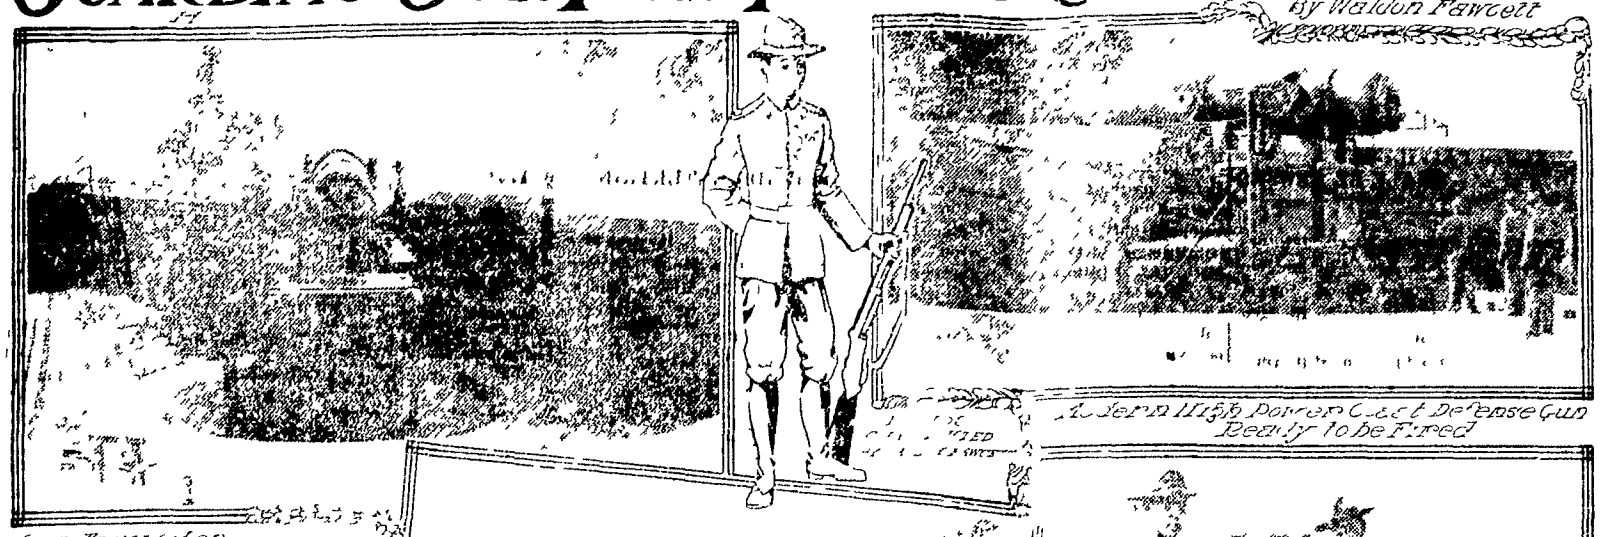
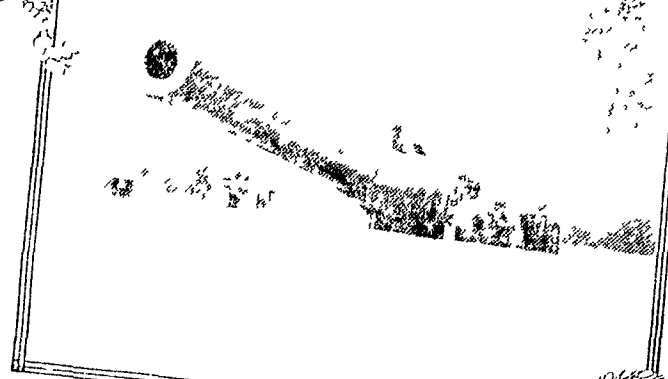
By Waldon Fawcett



Gun Practice Passing Vessels

A 12-inch High Power Coast Defense Gun Ready to be Fired



Loading Projectile Into Breech of 12-inch Rifle Gun from the Front of the Pump Gun

One Pounder Ammunition

Handling Ammunition

For the better part of a century the United States has not had its gaze fixed upon the subject of coast defense as it is at present. Illustrating, as it does, how completely our coast fortifications have kept pace with the advancement in the art of warfare, the publication at this time of a complete description of the Government's system of coast defense will be read with keen interest by the people of the entire country. Secrecy has been thrown around the location of the various batteries and the character of the guns mounted in them, for obvious reasons. Only by means of such secrecy can the Army and Navy officials hope to keep informed as to the exact strength of the defenses of other countries, which is necessary in order to keep pace with the progress of the times.

While the people of the United States are not disposed to favor the maintenance of a large standing army, they have always been willing to provide liberally for the coast defenses, which are regarded as the first line of protection for our cities and seaports. Appropriations for this purpose have been made from time to time as the necessity arose, and the result is that we have a chain of fortifications and guns which, in the opinion of experts, renders the country practically impregnable against attack by sea.

Under the old conditions of harbor defense this extreme secrecy was not quite so essential. In those days when chief reliance was placed on the protection afforded by heavy masonry walls or high-looking cut-in-the-rock forts, the location of the guns was a known quantity, a position established and self-apparent as the positions of the big guns in our battleships. With the invention of the disappearing gun carriage, however, and the more recent development of high-power rifles, capable of hurling projectiles with great accuracy for a distance of many miles, the problem of coast defense has undergone a complete change. Now the location of the guns is carefully concealed from the view of the enemy, and the gunners, stationed in bomb-proof chambers, are dependent entirely upon the data furnished them by officers stationed at points of vantage, who observe the effect of the shots and report by telephone or telegraph the necessary corrections in the range and elevation of the guns.

The most important point in this connection is the fact that the gunners, in training their pieces, literally shoot at the unseen foe. Instead of aiming directly at the object to be struck, they are taught to "shoot over the hill," the sights being adjusted to a point beyond the mark. Thus, in target practice, the gunners fire at a floating object anchored a mile or more from the shore, and the shots are observed by officers in a tower on the beach, who signal to the gunners the direction in which the projectile has gone, whether to the right or left, and how much the sights must be raised or lowered to make the next shot more accurate. Thus, by a process of elimination, the gunners soon learn to make allowance for the distance, the velocity of the wind, the weight of the projectile and the charge of powder, and the other factors which enter into the problem of hitting the mark.

Another important feature of the coast defense system is the fact that the guns are mounted in such a way that they can be fired only in the direction of the water. In other words, the guns are so placed that they cannot be turned around and fired upon the cities which they are designed to protect. This is done to prevent the possibility of the guns being captured by the enemy and turned against the cities which they were intended to protect.

Although the United States has been criticised for its backwardness in the matter of coast defenses, it is a fact that the country has been practically free from attack by sea since the Revolutionary War. Our coast cities have never been bombarded by an enemy's fleet, and the chances are that they never will be. Nevertheless, the Government has been wise in providing adequate defenses against such a contingency, for the reason that the best way to prevent war is to be prepared for it. Our coast defenses are designed to make it impossible for any hostile fleet to force its way into any of our harbors, and to destroy any vessel that may attempt to run the gauntlet of our fortifications.

Under the present system of coast defense the country is divided into coast artillery districts. Each artillery district has an administrative unit consisting of one or more forts. In the case of the latter the command of an artillery district is placed in the hands of a senior artillery officer, who is styled the district commander. The district commander not only has supervision of the guns of all coast artillery troops in his territory, but he also is in charge of the submarine mine fields and floating defenses. These supplementary protective agencies play an important part in our national scheme of coast defense, as may be seen from the fact that in Europe, as well as in the United States, it is the policy to entrust the mine fields to the care of the infantry. Each gun in the coast defenses is provided with a complete outfit of ammunition, which is stored in bomb-proof chambers in the immediate vicinity of the gun. The ammunition supply for the heavy guns consists of armor-piercing projectiles, shrapnel and shell. The armor-piercing projectiles are designed to penetrate the heavy armor of battleships, while the shrapnel and shell are used against the lighter vessels, such as torpedo boats and destroyers.

The cost of the coast defenses of the United States has been remarkably small when compared with the sums expended by the principal European powers. The total cost of the coast defenses, including the guns, mortars, gun carriages, ammunition, mine fields, floating defenses and all other accessories, has been about $100,000,000. This is a relatively small sum when it is considered that the defenses include 27 groups of fortifications, with a total of 70 batteries, mounting 800 guns and mortars, and that the coast line to be protected is 5,000 miles in length, including the Pacific coast, the Gulf coast, the Atlantic coast and the coast of Alaska. The cost of the defenses is also relatively small when compared with the value of the property which they protect. The total assessed valuation of the property in the seaboard cities of the United States is $22,000,000,000, and the annual commerce of the country is valued at $8,000,000,000. Hence the cost of the coast defenses is only about one-half of one per cent of the assessed valuation of the property which they protect, and only about one-fifth of one per cent of the annual commerce.

The most powerful guns in the coast defenses are the 12-inch rifles, which are mounted in pairs in pits or emplacements. These guns are capable of hurling a projectile weighing 1,000 pounds a distance of 20 miles, and the most powerful of the guns can send a projectile weighing 1,046 pounds a distance of 17 miles. The 12-inch guns are mounted on disappearing carriages, which lower the gun behind the protecting parapet after each shot has been fired. The 12-inch guns are loaded by means of a hydraulic rammer, which forces the projectile and charge into the breech of the gun. The charge of powder for the 12-inch gun weighs 430 pounds, and the gun is fired by means of an electric current. The projectile is raised to the breech of the gun by means of a hydraulic hoist, which is operated by the gunners of each battery. Each battery is also provided with a range finder, which is used to observe the range of the target. The range finder is placed in the emplacement of the gun, and the data obtained by the gunners is telephoned to the officer in charge of the battery, who, in turn, telephones the information to the officer in charge of the district. The latter officer, who is stationed in a tower on the beach, is provided with a complete set of data relative to the location of the various batteries in his district, and he is thus able to determine the exact range of the target. He also has a telephone connection with the observers in the towers, and he is thus able to keep the gunners informed as to the accuracy of their shots. The observers in the towers are provided with powerful field glasses, and they are able to see the shots strike the water, even when the target is so far away that it is invisible to the gunners. The observers are also provided with range finders, which enable them to determine the distance of the target from the gun. The observers are also provided with a telephone connection with the district commander, and they report to him the range of the target and the direction of the shots. The district commander then telephones the information to the officer in charge of the battery, who, in turn, telephones it to the gunners. The gunners then adjust the sights of the guns accordingly, and fire another shot. This process is repeated until the target is hit.

Old Faithful

When we passing across the northwest corner of Wyoming, in a direct line we would see before us a riot of disordered mountain ranges in every direction with here and there a peak or ridge rising to the height of 12,000 feet or more above the level of this valley. Through the center passes the Continental Divide, and the streams on both sides of it flow through the various outlets of the mazy and fantastic chaos into the Pacific Ocean or the Gulf of Mexico. But the mill ground of this vast area is not in the mountains, but in the plateau having a general elevation of 7,000 feet. This table land is a plateau dotted with lakes and streams, and it is here that the Yellowstone River has its source.

Until the Union Pacific railroad was built in 1869 there was little known of this region, and for many years after that date it was visited only by hardy pioneers and adventurous hunters. The first white man to penetrate the mysteries of the Yellowstone country was John Colter, who was a member of the Lewis and Clark expedition of 1804-6. Returning with wonderful stories of the geysers and hot springs, he was laughed at, and it was not until 1870 that the existence of this wonderland was established by the party of Major Gillette and General Washburn. In the following year Dr. Hayden, leading the force of the Government visited the region with a corps of assistants and photographers, and his reports, supplemented by those of the explorers, aroused the people of the United States to the importance of preserving this region as a national park. Congress accordingly passed a bill, which was signed by President Grant on March 1, 1872, setting apart a tract of land 55 miles long by 65 miles wide, containing 3,575 square miles, or 2,288,000 acres, as a public park and pleasure ground for the benefit and enjoyment of the people.

During the months of June, July and August Yellowstone Park attracts the tourist and the sightseer. At other seasons it is snow-bound and deserted, save by the guards on duty at the gates. Only for six weeks following the middle of July do the flowering plants bloom, but in that short term they display a wealth of color that is perhaps the most striking feature of the park. Its animals are also a source of interest, for here they are found in a state of nature, unafraid of man, and as tame as domestic animals. Of the many geysers, each with its individual peculiarities, Old Faithful is perhaps the most famous. Its name is given because it has been playing regularly every sixty minutes for many years. Its eruptions last from three to five minutes, and during that time from 3,000 to 5,000 gallons of water are thrown to a height of 150 feet. And whilst the exclamations that greet the first dash of spray are still in the air Old Faithful begins to subside, and in a few minutes the column of water has entirely disappeared, leaving only a cloud of steam to mark the spot. Other geysers in the park play at irregular intervals, some of them shooting their columns of water to a height of 250 feet. The most important point in this park

The transportation service is a feature of the park. Many vehicles are at the disposal of visitors, although extra charges have been brought to bear during recent years to secure their admission. Eight-horse coaches make the trip through the park, which is unequaled in the world. The most important point in this park

Chairman Jacoby, of the buildings and grounds committee, read from notes the observations and recommendations of the committee in making a recent tour of the buildings One recommendation is that no hooks shall be used on any door so that they can not be fastened from either the inside or outside Everything possible is to be done to safeguard the lives of the children

At the State Street the Davids Street and the Greenwood Street buildings new doors are to be made into the children's playrooms in order that the pupils will not have to go near the furnaces A number of changes will also be made in the High school building, but no action will be taken until Principal K H Marshall returns from Madison Wisconsin, where he is taking a six weeks course in the university there

As nearly all the janitors were present Member F J Guthery wanted to know their opinion as to the relative difference between the cost of coal and gas The janitors were unanimous in their opinion that coal was more expensive when the hauling away of ashes was taken into consideration

As the playgrounds innovation is only an experiment of the board it will be abolished immediately it was said in the event of the children abusing the privileges accorded them

BIG DIRIGIBLE TOTAL WRECK

Passengers Rejoice at Their Narrow Escape

ARE FORCED TO LAND IN TREES

Big Air Liner Remains in Air Ten Hours

Excursion Party Ascend from Dusseldorf for a Two Hour Cruise but Heavy Winds Toss Balloon About at Will—Occupants Expect Once To Be Dashed to the Earth but Fall Is Checked

Dusseldorf June 29 The Deutschland Count Zeppelins big dirigible balloon was wrecked while attempting a two hour flight with a crew of 10 men and 20 passengers aboard It was driven helplessly for some hours and then made a landing in a clump of trees on the edge of the Teutoberger forest The passengers newspaper men who were out for the trial trip had to slide down the tree trunks 60 feet to the ground

The ascension was made from here while a brisk wind was blowing which soon developed into a gale The crew tried to turn the dirigible back to her anchorage but they found it impossible The big craft was before the southwest wind toward Elberfeld and Muenster The motor became unruly and the only thing left for the pilot to do was to drop to the earth at the first favorable opportunity

He tried to make a landing at Muenster but the gale had so greatly freshened that he had to give up his attempt at both places Such grave fears were entertained here as to the safety of the dirship that word was passed to all military posts along the line of flight ordering troops to be ready to help should the pilot bring his ship toward the earth

Notes were dropped along the course of flight saying that the pilot had attempted to make head against the wind but had failed Some of the newspaper writers declared that the trial was so futile that in their belief projects to start a regular line of airships for commercial uses would be doomed to failure

In Air Ten Hours

It was a good 10 hours after the ship took the air that the pilot was able to bring her to a landing The trip was designed to last only two hours During the whole period of the ships ascent she was watched with the greatest interest and at times it was feared that the whole company aboard her would lose their lives

At one time a squall drove it suddenly to a height of 1000 feet causing a great loss of gas The combined with saturation from almost an rain resulted in an equally sudden fall The occupants expected to be dashed to the earth The falling of the dirship was however checked when it was about 60 feet from the ground and the hapless hulk continued its westward career before the tempest until finally it dashed into the forest with a terrific crash

By lucky circumstance only was serious hurt and partly by ropes and by scrambling down the branches of trees all reached the ground safely

Soldiers from Ohligs and Solingen have gone to try to save the dirship but the latest reports give little hope that they would be able to do more than watch the wreck

BIRD'S-EYE VIEW OF RENO, NEVADA, WHERE JEFFRIES AND JOHNSON WILL MEET IN HISTORIC HEAVYWEIGHT BATTLE

A TWENTY-FIVE PER CENT. CUT IS MADE

City Land Assessors Reduce Valuations One Fourth

ACTION IS TAKEN IN MATTER THURSDAY

Member Lucas Makes the Motion and Is Supported by Members Leffler and Roberts—Members Clemons and Criswell Oppose it—Prosecutor Renders an Opinion

The Marion city board of quadrennial land assessors has made a horizontal reduction of twenty five per cent in its valuations This action was taken Thursday

In response to appeals made to them by reason of the fact that the rural assessors failed to appraise property at its true value in money the board members knocked off twenty five per cent of every appraisement Member Thomas J Lucas made a motion that twenty five per cent be taken off all appraisements His motion was second by Member Thomas Roberts Members W A Clemons and Charles W Criswell bitterly opposed the motion on the ground that the board would not be doing its duty in assessing all realty at its true value in money

A warm discussion followed but when the motion was put it carried Members Thomas J Lucas Jacob C Leffler and Thomas R Roberts voting for it and Members W A Clemons and Charles W Criswell against it

Although the local assessors worked behind closed doors all day Thursday it was found impossible to complete the valuations When asked for a few of the valuations on business blocks and residence property board members declared that they could not give out any as none had been totalled We wont be able to give out the valuations for weeks yet declared one member

Replying to questions with reference to the quadrennial land appraisement propounded to him by County Auditor Charles L Allen in an open letter Prosecutor Attorney Charles I Justice in a verbal opinion rendered Thursday afternoon held that the Marion board of quadrennial land assessors had the power to complete the appraisement to employ and to pay the necessary number of clerks needed to finish the work

Prosecutor Justice says it is his opinion that the section of the law which states that the assessors shall complete the valuation of real property on or before July 1 is directory and not mandatory He therefore holds an appraisement of realty made by the board after July 1 to be legal and that the board has the authority under the statutes to allow bills for clerk hire after July 1

Immediately after giving his verbal opinion the prosecuting attorney began the preparation of a letter which was mailed to the auditor today

The office of Attorney General U G Denman has been flooded by letters from various authorities over the state for an opinion on the quadrennial appraisement law and an opinion is now being prepared by the attorney general This opinion will be awaited with a great deal of interest by the members of the Marion board of quadrennial assessors in view of the opinion of the local prosecuting attorney

Colonel Bryan may not realize the fact, but he's doing a fadeaway that has that of Matthewson beaten to a frazzle.

An exchange appears surprised to learn that Tammany will fight a pure-ballot law. It evidently imagines that Tammany is in politics for its health.

One occasionally meets people who keep themselves at fever heat trying to keep cool.

For some strange reason members of congress suffer more from heat in the halls of congress than on the Chautauqua circuits.

The Commoner, it will be noted, is not running to its job department for extra large type to head up presidential booms for Governor Harmon.

Governdr Hughes can't make up his mind whether to go to the supreme bench and do things to the unlawful trusts or stay where he is and continue a thorn in the side of the sporting fraternity.

The pastor of Brooklyn tabernacle lays the original sin to Adam and holds Eve blameless, which is a chivalrous thing to do, and adds nothing to the way of redemption. The same teacher says hell is not a place where the wicked are "burned, stewed, boiled or roasted," but a place where sinners lie unmolested. If he had said lie unnoticed, most anybody could believe it punishment enough.

Now that Colonel Roosevelt has discarded the horse for the auto, it is to be hoped that he will not forget himself every time he sees a camera pointed at him and attempt to add to the picturesque effect by driving his machine over a fence.

Secretary Ballinger may agree with "Uncle Joe" Cannon, who holds that the world is growing better, but to be on the safe side he proposes to crush a "snake" every time he sees one.

Though sorely tempted, Colonel Bryan has been able, thus far, to restrain his desire to read the Ohio Democracy out of the party.

The Pullman people claim that the upper berths are the more desirable, which goes to show the generosity of the American people in leaving the cream for the latecomer.

The wires tell us that a fifty-pound hailstone fell at York, Pennsylvania. Think of the trouble a fellow will go to to lug a big cake of ice to the top of a high building for the sake of a practical joke!

A local attorney suggests that the church and not the courts should be invoked to do away with neighborhood quarrels. He's liable to make himself persona non grata with his profession.

Congressman Longworth is to sound the keynote at the Republican state convention. This ought to be ample assurance of a harmonious note. Nick will be right on the administration measures he helped to enact, and has a family connection with the hope of the insurgents. By campaign time there will be a Republican family reunion, and the Chautauqua season will have been closed by that time, so that La Follette, Cummins and Dolliver will be happily in line to bless the country with a Republican victory.

The University of Michigan has a new president, and had a lot of valuable free advertising over the offer of that position to Colonel Roosevelt. There is plenty of free advertising in this era of excessive publicity, if one only knows the trick of getting it.

The German airship, Deutschland, has been wrecked and ruined without losing a passenger. This inclines us to sit up and take notice. The airship and aeroplane excursion has failed to appeal to us mainly because there seemed to be no satisfactory way of reaching the earth when the aerial progress was suddenly halted. In other words the ordinary individual has been fearful about descent rather than ascent. There isn't the slightest objection to flying if one can be sure about landing safely on terra firma again.

The senate committee tells us that the banks throughout the West, by enabling the farmers to hold their products for a higher market, are responsible for the high cost of living. Must we turn to the knights of the jimmy for relief?

Hail to the sane Fourth! A sweet little seven-year-old girl was burned to death, at Reading, Pennsylvania, Tuesday, as the result of a firecracker explosion. And this is just a suggestion of the preliminary. Anent the sanity for the Fourth and the first, second, third and fifth, why shouldn't parental concern have something to do with guarding a rising and celebrating generation?

Kansas City has tried the automobile funeral. Well, the automobile has some claim to a place in funeral processions. It furnishes its full share of victims.

The "business" interests of San Francisco, we are told, see in the action of Governor Gillett in connection with the Jeffries-Johnson fight, the political end of the governor. Investigation will probably develop the fact that the "business" interests referred to are along the same lines as those which have assisted in making Governor Hughes by opposing him.

There is no earthly reason why the friends of Messrs. Cox and Burton should deny that alliance. It's not the first time that politics has resulted in strange bed-fellows.

Eugene Zimmerman, of Cincinnati—the father of the duchess—says he will move to Europe in case Roosevelt is again elected president. Pshaw! Let events take their course, Gene! No use trying to make the thing a cinch!

TEST OF PATRIOTISM.

By William T. Ellis.

Terse Comments Upon the Christian Endeavor Topic for July 3, "What Is Christian Citizenship?" Ps. 124:1-8; Rev. 21:1-3.

Peace tests patriotism more than war. It is easier to fight with a musket for a visible flag than to fight with convictions, influence, vice, pen and ballot for those ideals which the flag represents. The patriots of peace, who make and uphold law, who mould public sentiment sanely, who attack open corruption and subtle, insidious alien tendencies—these are the ones who make a country worth fighting for when the call to arms comes ringing through the land.

Patriotism never thrives in the soil of selfishness.

Whatever is true service of country is also service of God.

Patriotism is a holy passion. It is divinely implanted, and is bound up with two other great human passions, love of God and love of home and family. The deepest sentiments of the heart are evoked by the claims of the country, and it is fitting that the nation's welfare should have a place in every Christian's prayers. The subject is a proper one to introduce into the most sacred of occasions.

The grace of standing is one of the eminent virtues. The person who, throughout all his life, in stormy weather and fair, in good report and ill, simply stands outspokenly for whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are honest, is thereby serving his country with a directness, an immediateness, and an effectiveness that can scarcely be surpassed by any other form of service. A noble life is the loftiest patriotism. The hope of the state is the character of its citizens. There can not be a good nation made up of bad men, nor a great nation whose people are small, selfish and sordid. Just to be good is to be patriotic.

A pure life is an acceptable offering on the altar of patriotism.

Whoever dedicates his life to ends of human service is most effectively consecrating himself to his county.

"Dream not of noble service elsewhere wrought;
The simple duty that awaits thy hand
Is God's voice uttering a divine command;
Life's common deeds build all that saints have thought."

One of the "white man's burdens" is the betterment of the whole world.

A Christian greeting to the bewildered, lonely and sensitive immigrant is a testimony to religion indelibly graven on the heart.

Patriotism joins with religion in constraining the churches to care for the incoming aliens. The very genius of the nation is imperiled by this invading army of foreigners, except they be led into an acceptance of the Christian ideals of this Western world.

In the enjoyment of liberty's prizes men are tempted to shrink liberty's pain. For the great rights which this western world possesses under the law may be maintained only at the cost of watchfulness and service. The peril of self-government is the indifference of the majority to the obligations of citizenship. Men who would be among the first to leap to the defense of the land against foreign invasion view the usurpation of their rights by professional politicians and by unscrupulous corporations with incredible equanimity.

No party can count on the vote of the best citizen.

Love of liberty and loyalty to God will keep any nation safe.

Love of country is born of God. Christians have always been patriots. Jesus loved his nation well enough to die for it. We are only fulfilling the law of the Lord when we give to our own country the deep, intelligent, and unswerving devotion of our hearts. We could not be traitors to our nation's highest interests without also being traitors to God.

TWO MARION MISSES ARE HONORED TUESDAY

Misses Titus and Boger Reelected Vice Presidents,

OF EPWORTH LEAGUE OF DELAWARE DISTRICT

Rev. M. D. Baumgardner, of Prospect, Is Chosen President To Succeed Rev. William McK. Brackney—The Place of Holding the Next Meeting Is Not Yet Determined.

Despite the very inclement weather of Monday evening, there was a large attendance at the opening session of the Delaware district Epworth league convention of the Central Ohio conference at Prospect. A small number of earlier, went from this city.

After the meeting had been called to order, Rev. M. D. Baumgardner, of Prospect, gave the address of welcome, and the response was made by Rev. J. W. Holland, of Upper Sandusky. Dr. William McK. Brackney, district president of the league, gave a very helpful address on "Watchwords for Epworth Leaguers." He was heard with close attention.

After the consideration of some minor business matters, the convention adjourned until Tuesday morning.

Following the program of the evening, a reception was given the delegates and their friends in the church parlors. The time was spent socially, and refreshments were served. Miss Mina Boger, of this city, was in charge of the affair.

Tuesday Morning's Session.

Tuesday morning's session of the convention was opened with devotional exercises by Rev. J. W. Donnan, formerly of Marion, after which was the roll call and the consideration of the various reports.

Miss Elizabeth Rexroth read a very excellent paper on the theme, "Junior League Work and Its Place in the Church." Miss Rexroth's paper was one of the best-prepared possible, and the league workers appreciated her effort in its preparation.

The paper to have been read by Miss Hazel Markwith, of LaRue, was not read, and this time was given to discussion. Dr. D. H. Bailey, of Epworth church, of this city, gave a fine address on "Importance of Social Departments." He was heard with interest. The closing address on the program was by Rev. D. G. Hall, of Forest, on "Our Young People and the Grace of Giving."

Committees on nomination and resolutions were appointed, and reported Tuesday afternoon and evening. Rev. W. McK. Brackney, district president, presided over the sessions of the convention.

Officers were elected at 5 o'clock Tuesday evening.

Rev. H. V. McCleary, of this city, conducted the devotions.

Tuesday Afternoon.

At the Tuesday afternoon session of the Delaware district convention of the Epworth league of the Central Ohio conference, at Prospect, Miss Katherine Titus, of this city, was reelected second vice president and Miss Mina Boger was reelected fourth vice president for the ensuing year. Rev. M. D. Baumgartner, of Prospect, was chosen president of the body, succeeding Rev. William McK. Brackney.

The program of the convention, Tuesday afternoon, was interesting, and the attendance during the afternoon was exceptionally large. Considerable business was given attention, and late in the evening the report of the nominating committee was received, and, aside from those mentioned, Joseph G. Miller, of Upper Sandusky, was chosen first vice president, and Mrs. Carl Jamison, of Dunkirk, third vice president. Miss Margaret Fitzwater, of Delaware, was elected secretary and treasurer, and Miss Vance, of Delaware, was chosen president of the junior league work in the district.

A feature of the program of the afternoon was an address by Rev. C. J. Buchanan, a returned missionary. Rev. A. E. Harford, of Toledo, gave a very helpful address upon the theme, "The Home Task."

Professor R. T. Stevenson, of Ohio Wesleyan university, at Delaware, who was to have given the address at the evening session, was unable to be present, and Dr. Adams, of the St. Paul's church, Delaware, gave an address. He was heard with much interest.

After the consideration of various matters, the convention adjourned. The place for holding the next meeting was not determined.

To Open Saturday Night.

The local bankers have arranged for opening their respective places of business, Saturday evening from 7:30 to 9 o'clock, in order to accommodate the people wishing to deposit money. Inasmuch as the banks will be closed all day July 4, the bankers feel that many local people would prefer depositing their money rather than holding it over the Fourth.

Lives Only a Day.

The one-day-old son of Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Zachman died at the family residence, No. 298 south Main street, Wednesday night. Burial was made in the Marion cemetery, Thursday afternoon.

CHANCES GOOD TO ENRICH TREASURY

George Greeno Settles with Treasurer Wottring Thursday.

By reason of a settlement made by George Greeno with County Treasurer W. C. Wottring, Wednesday afternoon, indications now are that the Marion county treasury will be considerably enriched through the operations of the Rose county local-option law. Greeno was placed on the tax duplicate for the Dow liquor tax as a result of making a sale. Greeno sought to enjoin the collection, but lost in the common pleas court, and his property was levied against for the amount.

Recently Greeno sold the property to G. A. Thibaut, and before making the transfer to the purchaser paid the penalty, and the liquor tax, amounting to $300. Greeno's property was charged on the duplicate with the tax, November 23, 1908.

In view of the fact that the supreme court has held that, where it is proven one is engaged in the sale of liquor as a business, that person is liable for the liquor tax, the local authorities believe they will now have little trouble in collecting the tax against those who were convicted and own property.

Goodlove Known Here.

James F. Goodlove, of Upper Sandusky, who will not have to serve a sentence of fifteen years for killing Percy Stuckey unles he is retried and convicted, under the decision of the supreme court, as detailed in the Star's telegraphic columns, was formerly a porter at Hotel Marion, and is quite well known here.

VANQUISHED BLUES ENTERTAIN VICTORS

At the United Brethren Church, Tuesday Night.

FINE PROGRAM MUCH ENJOYED

Over 400 Are Present for the Event. Ice-Cream and Wafers Are Served. An Outcome of a Contest To Increase United Brethren Sunday-School Membership.

Over 400 people were in attendance at the banquet given at the United Brethren church, Tuesday evening, when the Blues, the losers in a recent contest for new members in the Sunday-school, entertained the Whites, the winners in the contest.

An interesting program was rendered, and during a social hour ice-cream and wafers were served.

The program of the evening was opened with a song by the congregation, after which Mrs. Philip Shambaugh read the scripture lesson. Mrs. Mattie Cromer led in prayer, and following another song by the congregation, a reading was given by Perry Miles. Howard Hippitit also gave a reading. A piano and violin duet by Marie Johnston and Vesta Williamson was a pleasing number. It was followed by readings by Edna Bendle, Bernice Englert and Carrie Miles. After a piano solo by Lottie Campbell, Phoebe Williams and Mayetta Siegford gave readings. After another piano duet by the Misses Johnston and Williamson, readings were given by Mrs. Philip Shambaugh and Myrtle Smith. A vocal duet by Scott Ferguson and Verda Miles was pleasing. The program was closed with a paper by Mrs. Cromer, and a song by the congregation.

The affair throughout was one of the most interesting possible and was thoroughly enjoyable.

BRIDE AND GROOM GIVEN A JOY RIDE

Through the Streets of the City Tuesday Evening.

Mrs. Grace M. Coler-Miller and Clarence E. Anderson, who were united in marriage at the home of the bride's father, Samuel Coler, on Blaine avenue, last Sunday, were given a joy ride in a sulky through the city between 10 and 11 o'clock Tuesday night.

Mrs. Anderson, who is twenty, and her husband, who is twenty-two, were hauled to the courthouse esplanade, where they were taken from the sulky and tied to one of the big sycamore trees. Then the crowd sprinkled red fire dangerously near them, and began to yell like Comanche Indians burning victims at the stake. Finally, the crowd tiring of this, the bride and groom were loaded into the sulky and taken to their newly-prepared home on south Prospect street.

MR. ALBERT B. MARTIN AND MISS M'ELHENY

Are Married at Parsonage of Rev. H. H. Holverstott.

Miss Susan L. McElheny, of this city, and Mr. Albert B. Martin, of Wyandot county, were united in marriage at the parsonage home of Rev. H. H. Holverstott, on east Columbia street, Wednesday, at 2 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin will make their future home on a farm in Wyandot county.

DELAWARE PASTOR CHOSEN PRESIDENT

Of Young People's Union of the Marion Presbytery.

REV. E. M. WYLIE THUS HONORED

Sessions of the Society at the First Presbyterian Church Tuesday and Tuesday Evening Are Held To Have Been of the Greatest Profit to the Delegates.

The convention of the Young People's union of the Marion Presbytery was held at the First Presbyterian church in this city, Tuesday afternoon and evening. About seventy delegates and representatives of the Young People's societies of ten different Presbyterian churches in the Marion Presbytery, which is comprised of Marion, Morrow, Delaware and Union counties, attended the conference.

The afternoon session convened at 1:30 o'clock. Music for both sessions was furnished by an orchestra. The devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. J. G. Currey, of Hilborne, after which the welcome address was given by Mrs. F. Schrote, who welcomed the visitors to the city and expressed the hope that the meeting would be beneficial to all. Miss Ada Chapin, of Prospect, responded, saying, "All of us are glad to be here, as there is no better place to go than Marion."

After the appointment of the temporary committees, D. C. Nelson gave a short talk on "In What Way Can the Young People Influence the General Tone of the Church?"

Mr. Nelson answered the question by saying it could be told in one sentence, and that sentence was "By keeping the pledge." The speaker said: "Young people can influence the tone of the church by staying in their own church and by consecration, loyalty and faithfulness to their pledge. The world has a standard for us, and we ought to bear fruit. We must be witnesses, and we should know that we are Christians and show kindness."

Significant Problems.

"What Are the Most Significant Problems Facing the Christian Endeavor Societies?" was answered by J. H. Kincade, of Marysville. Mr. Kincade said these problems are the same for the young as for the older people. This is a rapid transit age, and we are pursuing the same efforts day after day, but not paying enough attention to our Christian work. The speaker gave many interesting points and said the older people and pastors should assist in this great movement. Another significant problem discussed was the lack of Sabbath observance.

Miss Edith Condit, of Sunbury, then spoke on "The Relation of Systematic Giving to Missions." She said we must have a system about all our work, especially in giving a definite part of our incomes to mission work, and in the training of those under our care in the Sunday-schools along missionary lines.

Rev. S. C. Bates, who was next on the program, talked on "Benefit of Taking Part in Young People's Meeting." He said that each one of us derived a great benefit in our Christian experience by being active in the meetings of the society.

A Secretary's Report.

The report of the secretary of the Young People's union was then read by Miss Chapin, after which the delegates responded to roll call.

An open conference was held by Rev. G. M. Rourke on "The Wise Use of the Bible," and group conferences were conducted by Rev. J. R. Lloyd, of Richwood, on "Devotional Element in Christian Endeavor Life;" Rev. William Houston, of Mt. Gilead, on "The World View," and Rev. R. V. Chapin, of Prospect, on "The Social Side."

The meeting was then adjourned until 7:30 o'clock, and about 100 repaired to the basement of the church, where supper was served by the Young People's societies of the local Presbyterian churches.

The evening's session was opened with a selection by the orchestra, the devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. Mr. Chapin, and a quartet sang a selection.

The committee on resolutions made its report extending a vote of thanks to the local churches for their hospitality. The nominating committee read a list of the new officers for the coming year which was approved and accepted. The officers elected are:

Officers Elected.

Rev. E. M. Wylie, of Delaware, president; Rev. J. G. Currey, of Hilborne, vice president; Miss Ada Chapin, of Prospect, secretary, and Miss Anna Dennig, of this city, treasurer.

Miss Edith Condit was called to to give a few remarks concerning the Young People's summer conference at Winona, Indiana. She urged every member of the various societies to make an effort to attend the conference this summer. Miss Ina McKitrick, of Marysville, who attended the conference two years ago, told of some of her pleasant experiences while at the summer resort.

Rev. E. M. Wylie, pastor of the Presbyterian church at Delaware, delivered the principal address of the meeting. He spoke at some length on "Church Unity and the "Christian Endeavor Movement," and his address was listened to with much interest. He said that the Christian Endeavors of the various denominations had taken no small part in the unity of the Christian forces, and that only through this unity would the world finally be brought to Christ.

International in Scope.

"Today the Christian Endeavor is international in its scope and universal in its reach," said Rev. Mr. Wylie. "I believe we are fast losing the emphasis of Presbyterianism as an ism and Methodism as an ism and that when we all get together in unity great good will be accomplished. I believe this church unity is possible by reason of this Christian Endeavor movement which is world-wide in its scope. The Christian Endeavor society calls together young people of all denominations and does not ask your creed, nothing but your character. The Christian Endeavor movement is greater than any church, and is the greatest unity of our forces by the common vision of Christ.

"This unification of Christian forces is not only possible by a common vision and practicable by a common emphasis, but by reason of a common leadership. Jesus Christ demands a leadership over all and we are all working for the same Master and therefore should be united in our efforts to Christianize the world."

THE CONVERSION OF THE NEIGHBORHOOD

Is Recommnded by Attorney L. E. Myers,

TO JUSTICE GOMPF TUESDAY AFTERNOON

Mrs. Young and Mrs. Reed Are Expert Stone-Throwing Artists When the Targets Are Fair-Sized Houses. Justice Gompf Reserves His Decision for a Time.

"This woman ought not to be prosecuted, your honor. What the authorities ought to do is to establish a church or a mission in that neighborhood of the city and convert the people living out there."

Such was the novel plea of Attorney Louis E. Myers before Justice Charles E. Gompf, Tuesday afternoon, when he asked that his client, Mrs. Almira Reed, charged with malicious destruction of property, be discharged from the custody of the court.

Attorney Myers reviewed in detail the neighborhood feud that has existed in the vicinity of Toledo avenue and Home street for more than a year. He referred to the place where Mrs. Reed lives as "Home, Sweet Home" street, and declared that Mrs. Reed was no more to blame than Benjamin F. Young's wife, who caused her arrest after she had hurled a stone through one of the windows of the Young home.

The trial began in the morning, and lasted all day, many witnesses being examined. One witness testified that Mrs. Reed threw a basketful of stones at the Young house, and another testified that Mrs. Young hurled them all back at the Reed home. The trouble started over a well, where both families got their water.

Mrs. Reed lost her temper several times, and it was necessary for two or three to hold her in her chair, especially when Mrs. Young testified. "Hell will get you, Mrs. Young," once she shouted.

Attorney H. Edmund Hill represented Mrs. Young, and Attorneys L. E. Myers and Homer E. Johnson were counsel for the prisoner, who, a year or more ago, was placed under a $200 peace bond.

After the attorneys had made their arguments, Justice Gompf reserved his decision.

MRS. ALMIRA REED IS HELD TO GRAND JURY

She Is Charged with Malicious Destruction of Property.

Mrs. Almira Reed, of Home street, was held to the grand jury in the sum of $100 by Justice Charles E. Gompf, Thursday, after a trial which lasted all of Tuesday in his court.

Mrs. Reed, who is seventy-three years of age, was charged by Benjamin F. Young with malicious destruction of property by throwing a stone through a window in the Young home. She furnished bond.

If you were to sit in this CUTTING car,
You may travel near and far;
Fully warranted from all disaster,
Nails will not cut through the tires,
You can speed, and speed, like fliers.

It is the Co-ed of motor cars;
It controls the Lucky stars.
Get behind this Engine Hood,
And you will come home to the good.
There never was such style and power,
As found in a CUTTING car.

Colonel Bryan may not realize the fact, but he's doing a fadeaway that has that of Matthewson beaten to a frazzle.

An exchange appears surprised to learn that Tammany will fight a pure-ballot law. It evidently imagines that Tammany is in politics for its health.

One occasionally meets people who keep themselves at fever heat trying to keep cool.

For some strange reason members of congress suffer more from heat in the halls of congress than on the Chautauqua circuits.

The Commoner, it will be noted, is not running to its job department for extra large type to head up presidential booms for Governor Harmon.

Governor Hughes can't make up his mind whether to go to the supreme bench and do things to the unlawful trusts or stay where he is and continue a thorn in the side of the sporting fraternity.

The pastor of Brooklyn tabernacle lays the original sin to Adam and holds Eve blameless, which is a chivalrous thing to do, and adds nothing to the way of redemption. The same teacher says hell is not a place where the wicked are "burned, stewed, boiled or roasted," but a place where sinners lie unmolested. If he had said lie unnoticed, most anybody could believe it punishment enough.

Now that Colonel Roosevelt has discarded the horse for the auto, it is to be hoped that he will not forget himself every time he sees a camera pointed at him and attempt to add to the picturesque effect by driving his machine over a fence.

Secretary Ballinger may agree with "Uncle Joe" Cannon, who holds that the world is growing better, but to be on the safe side he proposes to crush a "snake" every time he sees one.

Though sorely tempted, Colonel Bryan has been able, thus far, to restrain his desire to read the Ohio Democracy out of the party.

The Pullman people claim that the upper berths are the more desirable, which goes to show the generosity of the American people in leaving the cream for the latecomer.

The wires tell us that a fifty-pound hailstone fell at York, Pennsylvania. Think of the trouble a fellow will go to to lug a big cake of ice to the top of a high building for the sake of a practical joke!

A local attorney suggests that the church and not the courts should be invoked to do away with neighborhood quarrels. He's liable to make himself persona non grata with his profession.

Congressman Longworth is to sound the keynote at the Republican state convention. This ought to be ample assurance of a harmonious note. Nick will be right on the administration measures he helped to enact, and has a family connection with the hope of the insurgents. By campaign time there will be a Republican family reunion, and the Chautauqua season will have been closed by that time, so that La Follette, Cummins and Dolliver will be happily in line to bless the country with a Republican victory.

The University of Michigan has a new president, and had a lot of valuable free advertising over the offer of that position to Colonel Roosevelt There is plenty of free advertising in this era of excessive publicity, if one only knows the trick of getting it

The German airship, Deutschland, has been wrecked and ruined without losing a passenger. This inclines us to sit up and take notice. The airship and aeroplane excursion has failed to appeal to us mainly because there seemed to be no satisfactory way of reaching the earth when the aerial progress was suddenly halted. In other words the ordinary individual has been fearful about descent rather than ascent. There isn't the slightest objection to flying if one can be sure about landing safely on terra firma again.

The senate committee tells us that the banks throughout the West, by enabling the farmers to hold their products for a higher market, are responsible for the high cost of living. Must we turn to the knights of the jimmy for relief?

Hail to the sane Fourth! A sweet little seven-year-old girl was burned to death, at Reading, Pennsylvania, Tuesday, as the result of a firecracker explosion. And this is just a suggestion of the preliminary. Anent the sanity for the Fourth and the first, second, third and fifth, why shouldn't parental concern have something to do with guarding a rising and child-destroying generation?

Kansas City has tried the automobile funeral. Well, the automobile has some claim to a place in funeral processions. It furnishes its full share of victims.

The "business" interests of San Francisco, we are told, see in the action of Governor Gillett in connection with the Jeffries-Johnson fight, the political end of the governor. Investigation will probably develop the fact that the "business" interests referred to are along the same lines as those which have existed in making Governor Hughes by opposing him.

There is no earthly reason why the friends of Messrs Cox and Burton should deny that alliance. It's not the first time that politics has resulted in strange bed-fellows

Eugene Zimmerman, of Cincinnati — the father of the duchess says he will move to Europe in case Roosevelt is again elected president. Pshaw! Let events take their course, Gene! No use trying to make the thing a cinch!

TEST OF PATRIOTISM.

By William T. Ellis.

Terse Comments Upon the Christian Endeavor Topic for July 3, "What Is Christian Citizenship?" Ps. 121:1-8; Rev. 21:1-3.

Peace tests patriotism more than war. It is easier to fight with a musket for a visible flag than to fight with convictions, influence, vice, pen and ballot for those ideals which the flag represents. The patriots of peace, who make and uphold law, who mould public sentiment sanely, who attack open corruption and subtle, insidious alien tendencies—these are the ones who make a country worth fighting for when the call to arms comes ringing through the land.

Patriotism never thrives in the soil of selfishness.

Whatever is true service of country is also service of God.

Patriotism is a holy passion It is divinely implanted, and is bound up with two other great human passions, love of God and love of home and family. The deepest sentiments of the heart are evoked by the claims of the country, and it is fitting that the nation's welfare should have a place in every Christian's prayers. The subject is a proper one to introduce into the most sacred of occasions.

The grace of standing is one of the eminent virtues. The person who, throughout all his life, in stormy weather and fair, in good report and ill, simply stands outspokenly for whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are honest, is thereby serving his country with a directness, an immediateness, and an effectiveness that can scarcely be surpassed by any other form of service. A noble life is the loftiest patriotism. The hope of the state is the character of its citizens. There can not be a good nation made up of bad men, nor a great nation whose people are small, selfish and sordid Just to be good is to be patriotic.

A pure life is an acceptable offering on the altar of patriotism.

Whoever dedicates his life to ends of human service is most effectively consecrating himself to his county.

"Dream not of noble service elsewhere wrought;
The simple duty that awaits thy hand
Is God's voice uttering a divine command;
Life's common deeds build all that saints have thought."

One of the "white man's burdens" is the betterment of the whole world.

A Christian greeting to the bewildered, lonely and sensitive immigrant is a testimony to religion indelibly graven on the heart.

Patriotism joins with religion in constraining the churches to care for the incoming aliens. The very genius of the nation is imperiled by this invading army of foreigners, except they be led into an acceptance of the Christian ideals of this Western world.

In the enjoyment of liberty's prizes men are tempted to shrink liberty's pain. For the great rights which this western world possesses under the law may be maintained only at the cost of watchfulness and service. The peril of self-government is the indifference of the majority to the obligations of citizenship. Men who would be among the first to leap to the defense of the land against foreign invasion view the usurpation of their rights by professional politicians and by unscrupulous corporations with incredible equanimity.

No party can count on the vote of the best citizen.

Love of liberty and loyalty to God will keep any nation safe.

Love of country is born of God. Christians have always been patriots. Jesus loved his nation well enough to die for it. We are only fulfilling the law of the Lord when we give to our own country the deep, intelligent, and unswerving devotion of our hearts. We could not be traitors to our nation's highest interests without also being traitors to God.

Tailored costumes with the white linen with the fine hair stripes of black or color are remarkably smart if made up with pipings of a plain linen, matching the color of the hair line.

To fill in the coat with a deep shawl collar, there are vests of white linen or black and white checked linen, piped in different colors and buttoning with small buttons.

CHANCES GOOD TO ENRICH TREASURY

George Greeno Settles with Treasurer Wotring Thursday

By reason of a settlement made by George Greeno with County Treasurer W C Wotring Wednesday afternoon indications now are that the Marion county treasury will be considerably enriched through the operations of the Rose county local option law Greeno was placed on the tax duplicate for the Dow liquor tax as a result of making a sale Greeno sought to enjoin the collection but lost in the common pleas court and his property was levied upon for the amount

Recently Greeno sold the property to G A Thibaut and before making the transfer to the purchaser paid the penalty and the liquor tax amounting to $8 00 Greeno's property was charged on the duplicate with the tax November 2 1908

In view of the fact that the supreme court has held that where it is proven one is engaged in the sale of liquor as a business that person is liable for the liquor tax the local authorities believe they will now have little trouble in collecting the tax against those who were convicted and own property

Mr Nelson answered the question by saying it could be told in one sentence and that sentence was By keeping the pledge The speaker said Young people can influence the tone of the church by staying in their own church and by consecration Loyalty and faithfulness to their pledge The world has a standard for us and we ought to bear fruit We must be witnesses and we should know that we are Christians and show kindness

What Are the Most Significant Problems Facing the Christian Endeavor Societies was answered by J H Kincade of Marysville Mr Kincade said these problems are the same for the young as for the older people This is a rapid transit age and we are pursuing the same efforts day after day but not paying enough attention to our Christian work The speaker gave many interesting points and said the older people and pastors should assist in this great movement Another significant problem discussed was the lack of Sabbath observance

Miss Edith Condit of Sunbury then spoke on The Relation of Systematic Giving to Missions She said we must have a system about all our work especially in giving a definite part of our incomes to mission work and in the training of those under our care in the Sunday schools along missionary lines

Rev S C Bates who was next on the program talked on Benefit of Taking Part in Young Peoples Meeting He said that each one of us derived a great benefit in our Christian experience by being active in the meetings of the society

Miss Edith Condit was called to to give a few remarks concerning the Young Peoples summer conference at Winona Indiana She urged every member of the various societies to make an effort to attend the conference this summer Miss Ina McKitrick of Marysville who attended the conference two years ago told of some of her pleasant experience while at the summer resort

Rev E M Wylie, pastor of the Presbyterian church at Delaware delivered the principal address of the meeting He spoke at length on Church Unity and the Christian Endeavor Movement and his address was listened with much interest He said that all Christian Endeavors of the various denominations had taken hold in part in the unity of the Christian forces and that only through the unity would the world finally be brought to Christ

Today the Christian Endeavor is international in its scope and universal in its reach said Rev Mr Wylie I believe we are fast losing the emphasis of Presbyterianism Congregationalism and Methodism is in mind and that when we all get together in unity great good will be accomplished I believe this church unity is possible by reason of this Christian Endeavor movement which is world wide in its scope The Christian Endeavor society calls together young people of all denominations and does not ask your creed nothing but your character The Christian Endeavor movement is greater than any church and is the greatest unity of our forces by the common vision of Christ

This unification of Christian forces is not only possible by a common vision and practicable by a common emphasis but by reason of a common leadership Jesus Christ demands a leadership over all and we are all working for the same Master and therefore should be united in our efforts to Christianize the world

GOVERNOR IS TO BE PRELIMINARY

Dickerson Will Open Festivities at Reno Coliseum.

INTRODUCED BY TEX RICKARD

Promoter of Jeffries Johnson Fight Will Laud Executive of Sage Brush State as Square Man Who Refused to Bend Before Protests From Other States — Deputy Referee White Arrives on Scene — Fifty Women Expected to Attend Fight

Reno July 1 After much persuasion on the part of Richard Nelson Governor Dickerson has consented to appear in a monologue preliminary of the Jeffries Johnson fight next Monday afternoon

No official word of this embellishment of the July Fourth program has been allowed to escape from the lips of either Rickard or Dickerson This is because the twin financiers are holding a pleasant attraction in surprise for the patrons who will sit on the pine next Monday But one of the underground pipe lines which lead from Rickard through all the sporting territory about the Golden hotel sprung a leak and here is the arrangement by which the apogee of pugilism is to be given the official indorsement of the governor of the sovereign state of Nevada

When all the thousands are seated and the tension of expectancy is greatest Rickard will escort Governor Dickerson to the roped square in the center of the tremendous coliseum and will introduce him to the assembled multitude as the governor who has had the courage to see that the law of Nevada does not bend before protests from other states Rickard will then invite the spectators to contemplate a square man and a good fellow who knows the law as it is written and who has done his duty as he saw it

Introduced as Square Man

The private source of information which vouched for this interesting piece of gossip has it that thereon Governor Dickerson will deliver a brief speech in which he will tell about the glorious freedom that is enjoyed in the state of Nevada how people in Nevada consider the question of individual liberty and now I thinks that an exhibition such as that which is about to follow doesn't in any way transcend the bounds of morality and should not shock the delicate sensibilities of people who live in a more effete section of the country east of the glorious Washoe range

The heaviest breeze that blew through the corridors of the Golden hotel was that which bore Deputy Referee Charlie White of New York on its wings Mr White was met at the station by Rickard who told him of his selection as deputy referee for the fight as it had been made at a conference between Rickard and the Jeffries Johnson managers When White had heard of the honor thus bestowed upon him he said for publication

I am pleased to have been accepted by both Jeff and Johnson their managers and Mr Rickard to fill the post of assistant referee I consider it a great honor and should I be lucky enough to enter the ring though I surely do not wish Mr Kickard any ill fortune such as a knockout blow on the point of the chin my friends may be sure that I will be as I have always been in the ring strictly on the level

Divorce Colony on Hand

A delicate consideration on the part of the fight promoters for the unprotected women who are living temporarily in Reno pending the settlement of certain court actions become known when Contractor O'Loughlin let it be known that comfortable little booths for ladies would be erected in the section of the arena So great has been the demand for a place in the enclosure coupled with a determination that Rickard ordered the architects to space off with board stalls a large number of neat doorless rooms from the general vulgarity of the bleacher seats

REFUSE TO TELL WHAT THEY SAID

Taft and Roosevelt Chat Like College Chums.

PROMENADE PORCH AT BEVERLY

President and Former Executive Seem Glad to See Each Other and Punctuate Conversation With Numerous Vocal Explosions and Gesticulations—Rough Rider and Senator Lodge Run Gantlet of Reporters and Photographers

Pevely Mo July 1—The meeting between President Taft and Colonel Theodore Roosevelt at the summer cottage of the former was more like the meeting of two college boys who have been separated by a long summer than has been full of interest for both

Not a word but the high pitched voice of the colonel shot out the words with the vehemence it ever carried a note Theodore the big form of the president looming above that of the colonel shook as he boomed out

It is it be Mr President and Will Not it is Mr President and Theodore said the colonel as he eyed the man before him from head to foot Then they grasped each others shoulders in an unfeigned burst of delight The portico of the Taft cottage at Burgess Point is roomy but for the president of the United States the only living ex president it is not too large at all Up and down it with they strode laughing and gesticulating the smaller man eager and intensely interested the other fun loving hugely exploding now and then what he heard

Visions of Old Times

It reminded some of those who heard of the time at the White House in Washington when Mr Taft was secretary of war and the colonel was in the White House In those days not so long ago when Mr Taft entered the sanctum merriment entered too There was laughter always when he and Mr Roosevelt were together and not seriously engaged if there were others present while the president and the colonel talked Senator Lodge whose guest the latter had been at Nahant came over with him

Secretary Norton and Assistant Secretary Forster were on the portico of the Taft cottage too but they were but little in the conversation Time they all sat together on the lady porch but the most part of two hours and a half that Mr Roosevelt stayed within the gates of the summer capital he and the president paced the floor arm in arm talking, gesticulating and exulting in the renewal of old friendship

I had a most pleasant time with the president said the colonel when he whirled out of the gate in Senator Lodges car bound for Nahant and Boston I don't believe there was anything to say is there Cabot? he added turning to the senator The senator agreed that there was not We had most delightful time together he continued as an afterthought

Had Bully Time

They had a bully time was the way Secretary Norton put it when he came out later and was besieged by the newspaper men They talked about many things in a personal way

The colonel was shown a clipping from a morning newspaper in which he was declared to have told Governor Hughes that he was sore because the governor wouldn't run for a third term That he said with a string of the jaw is absurdity and unqualifiedly untrue

That was what the president and I had to say about a contest the prospect of which set the lips of the politicians wagging Lockjaw The hunter came over a little late from Nahant Long before the time he was even expected a party of newspaper men a half dozen photographers and a long string of automobiles with Boston and Beverly folk lolling in them were with about the entrance of the summer capital

HURLED NINETY FEET AND INSTANTLY KILLED

John E. Shuster Struck by a Big Four Train.

WHILE CROSSING ERIE TRACKS WEDNESDAY

Roar of an Eastbound Erie Passenger on the Big Four Track Attracts His Attention and He Does Not See the Westbound Big Four—An Unlucky Family.

His attention attracted by the roar of eastbound Erie passenger train, No. 8, on the Big Four tracks, John Edward Shuster, thirty-seven years old and married, stepped in front of westbound Big Four flyer, No. 41, on the Erie tracks, at the Greenwood street crossing, Wednesday about 7:50 a. m. and was hurled ninety feet. He was instantly killed.

Edward Brady, a fellow workman at the shops of the Huber Manufacturing company, was directly behind Shuster and shouted at him, but the doomed man never heard, and walked unconsciously to his destruction Ten minutes before, he had kissed his wife and children good-by at their home, No. 1511 east Center street.

Alighting from the street car at Center and Greenwood streets, Shuster hurried across the Big Four toward the Erie railroad with Brady close behind him. Neither of the two crossing watchmen had yet arrived, the hour being too early for them to be on duty. It is not thought that the engineer or fireman saw him, as the train was not stopped. Shuster was knocked on the north side of the tracks, falling on his back, between the rails of the switch tracks. He was removed to the Postle-Curtis morgue, on east Center street, where Coroner W. H. Hinklin viewed his mangled body.

The man's skull was crushed and nearly every bone in his body was broken. None of the limbs was severed.

Two years ago, John Shuster, the aged uncle of the dead man, was killed by a Big Four freight train at Section street crossing, at La Rue. William Shuster, a brother, had his legs amputated by a Chicago & Erie train near his home, north of La Rue, a number of years ago. He died later of typhoid fever.

Shuster, with his family, moved to Marion from La Rue about four months ago He was employed as a tester in the engine-room at the Huber shops since coming to Marion. He was married seven years ago to Mrs. Anna Miller, a widow, with one son, Edward, now twenty years old. His first wife, Miss Lula Wood, died in Washington county about eight years ago at the birth of a daughter, Hazel, who, with her brother and sister, John and Mary, aged fourteen and ten years, survives. He is also survived by his aged parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jared Shuster, residing near La Rue; two sisters, Mrs. Roy Hyatt, of Lansing, Michigan, and Mrs. Webster Van Sickle, of near La Rue, and four brothers, Frank, of near Marseilles; Elmer and Zelden, of near La Rue, and Ward, of Akron.

The deceased was a member of the Free Baptist church. All his life he had been a hard-working man, who was well-liked by all who knew him.

The remains were shipped to La Rue, where the funeral services were held Friday morning
